Indiana University

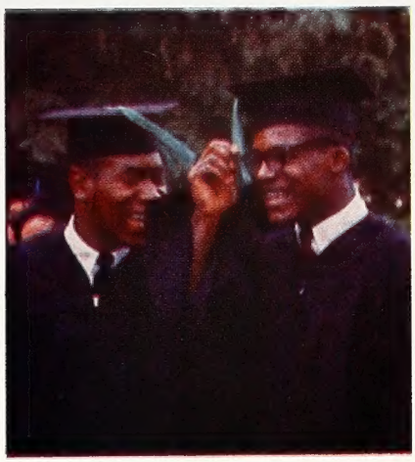

Bloomington, Indiana

The university is but
an intellectual midwife
dedicated to delivering the genius of the young.
The desire for knowledge
heralds her entrance;
her exit precedes
the wisdom mature.
In the buildings and woodlands
her substance is found,
in the being of teachers
her life.
And the proof of her skill
is the cry of discovery
sounded each day
from the lips of the young.

First the melody of a single instrument,

the harmony of two... that one may

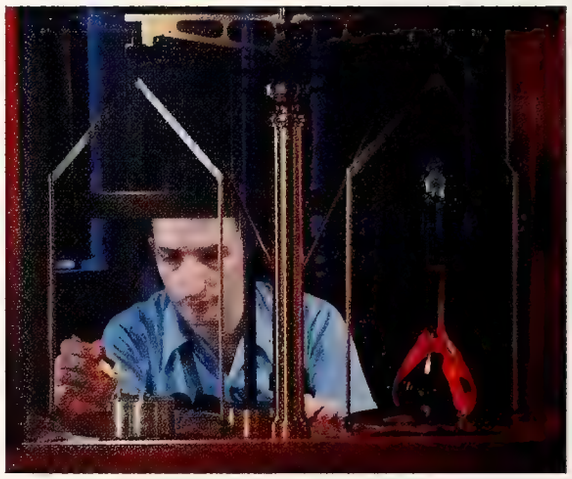

understand the music of the full orchestra

Inquisite youth:

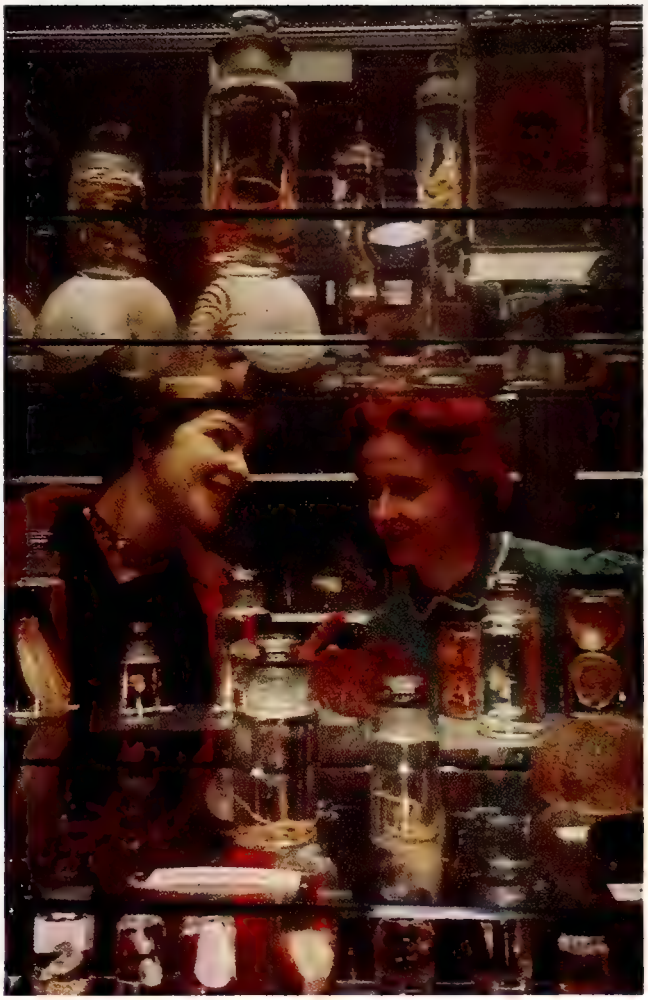

to these Old Wisdom

shall her mystery reveal

And what of man-created majesty can equal God's crown among the leaves?

From the alphabet of dreams...

and the primer of reality…

flows the beauty of man's signature…

And all around the freedom song of laughter...

Enter...

that I may give you
my knowledge, that you
may give me yours.
And together we shall create a new world of wonders.

The face shines proof of a many-chambered throbbing heart

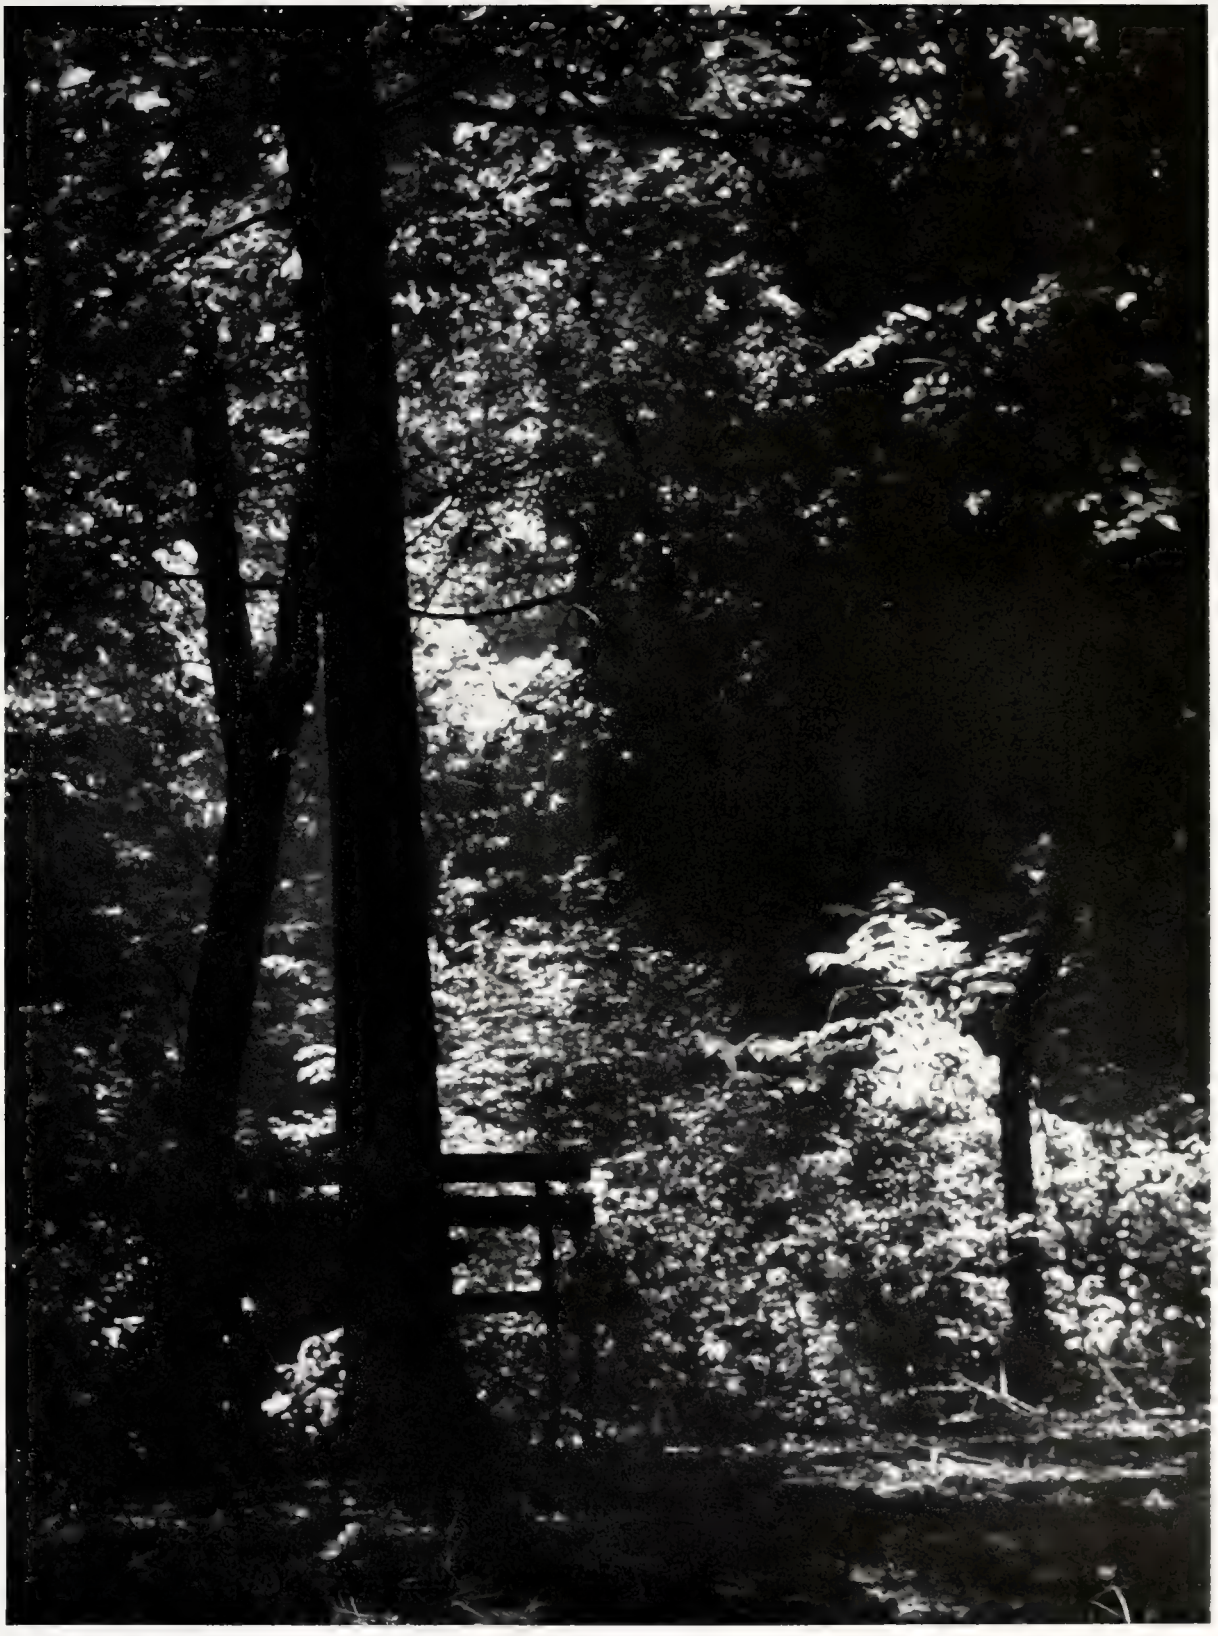

Autumn beauty . . . prelude to the long, cold winter

Pigeons grounded and still as the leaves

In a frame of green foliage, the Wellhouse stands as picturesquely as it did in distant days gone by.

This is our campus . . . a shady path . . . a small wood . . . a bubbling stream . . . meadows . . . beauty. Our campus can be a quiet haven, a place of peace and serenity created not so much by man as by nature. Only nature with her eternal touches can make modern buildings a part of campus, only nature . . . a soft cover of ivy against the walls . . . a small woods nearby . . . a wide blue sky. As the days and years go by students gradually become accustomed to this beauty, and it is no longer the revered thing it once was. But an alumnus returning to the campus sees its beauty again as for the first time . . . and remembers.

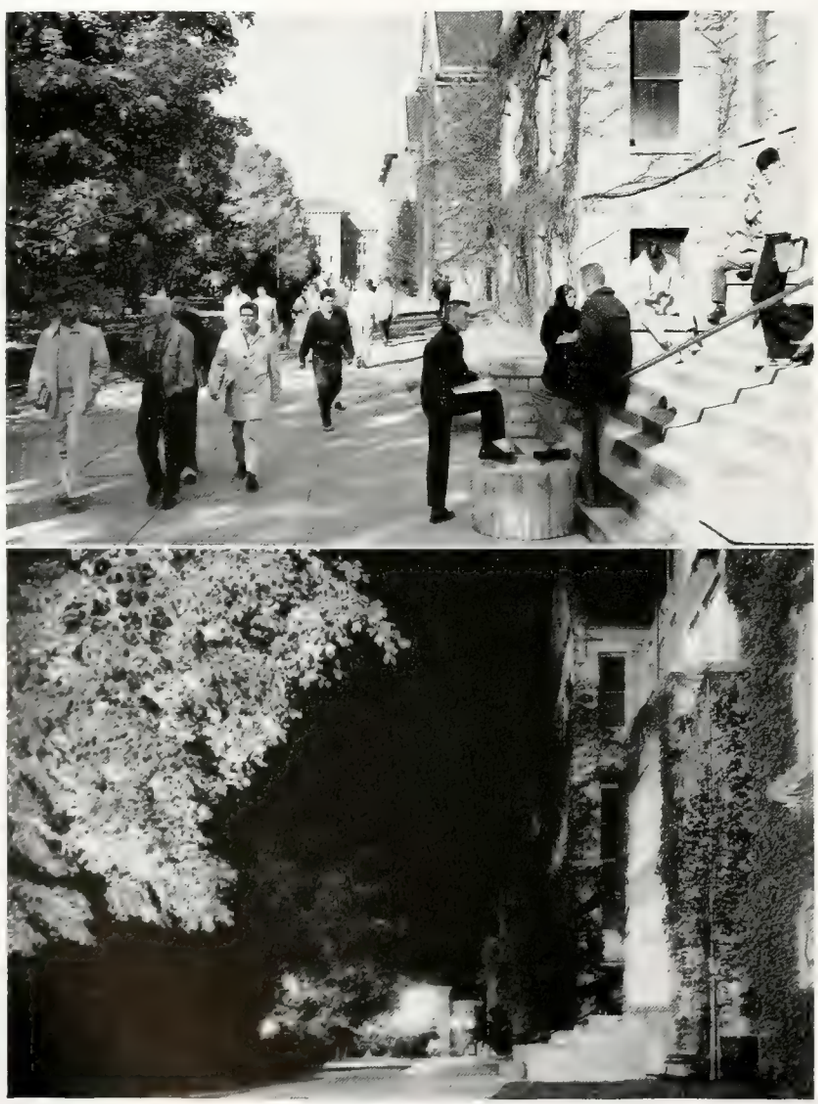

An old face in a familiar setting

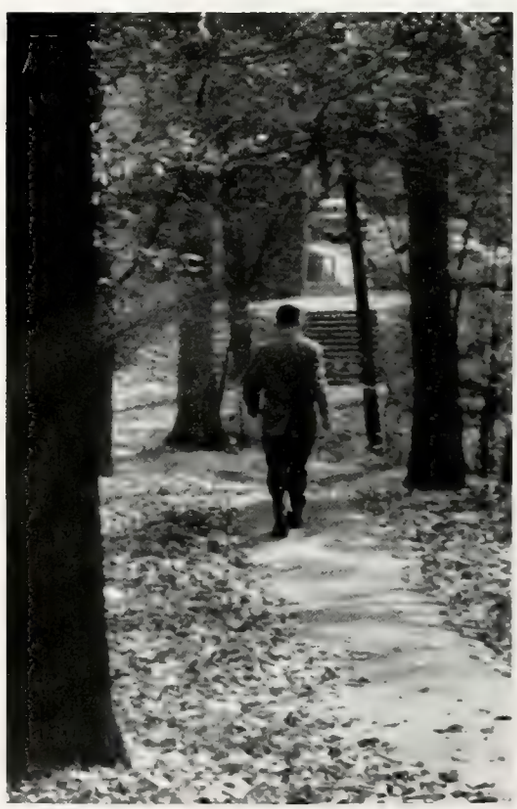

Where, amid solitude, one can observe solitude

These, the new citizens of a century-old community . . . come to bring new life to ancient traditions

Teeming, bright, busy by day; vacant, dark, still by night

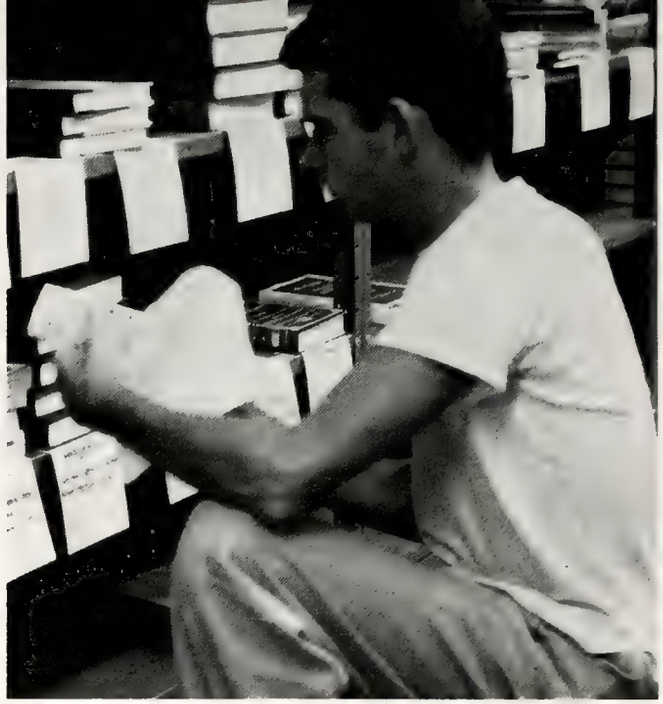

A lone survivor of between class desertion

The bell rings, and then evacuation begins . . . classes are over.

A university is more than a collection of books and a group of buildings. The university is people . . . whether they be students, faculty members, or maintenance men. It is people searching for knowledge, for an understanding of themselves, their friends, the world . . . of all existence. Their quest for wisdom is never ended and never satisfied. The more they learn, the more they realize how little they know. So it is among I.U. students. No matter whether they come from Indiana or another country, they are all Hoosiers . . . in the I.U. sense . . . on their endless ways to a common goal.

A last minute check will save extra trips.

Waiting taxis are mute evidence of a vacation ended.

What's really exasperating is that in only nine months all this stuff must be packed and hauled back home again.

After a long day, at last going home, ready to hit the books

It's time for a rest as the bags seem to get heavier.

Details, details, always details

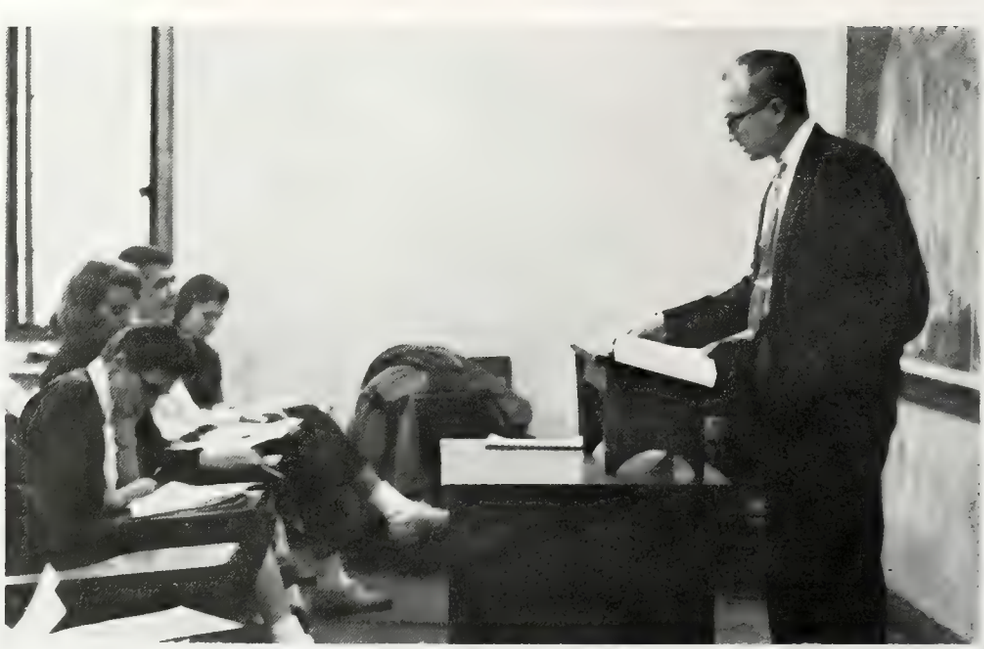

No matter what the method, each year the same . . . noise, people

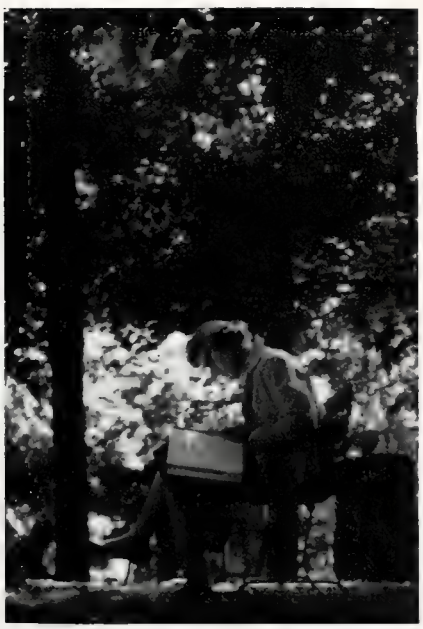

Knowledge pours forth and notes are written as the lecture continues.

And what bustling corridor, what solitary corner, holds not the evidence of man's search for knowledge

The young man and the skill

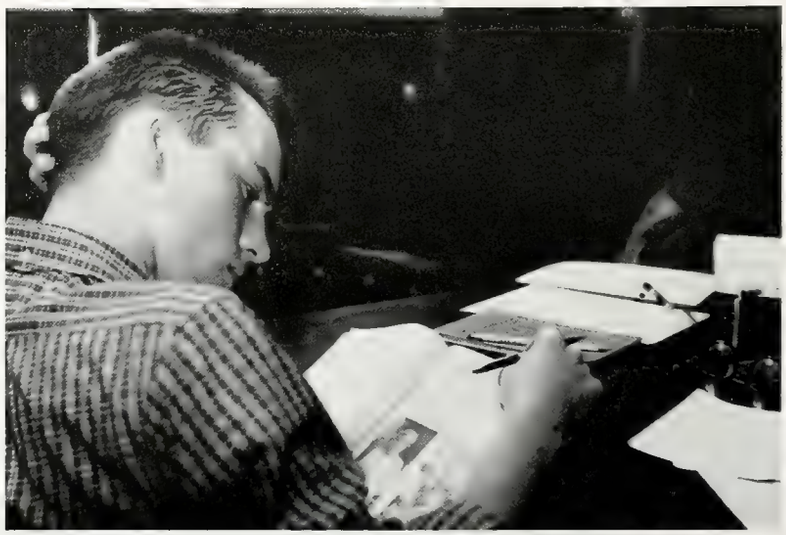

Nature's silence . . . a study haven.

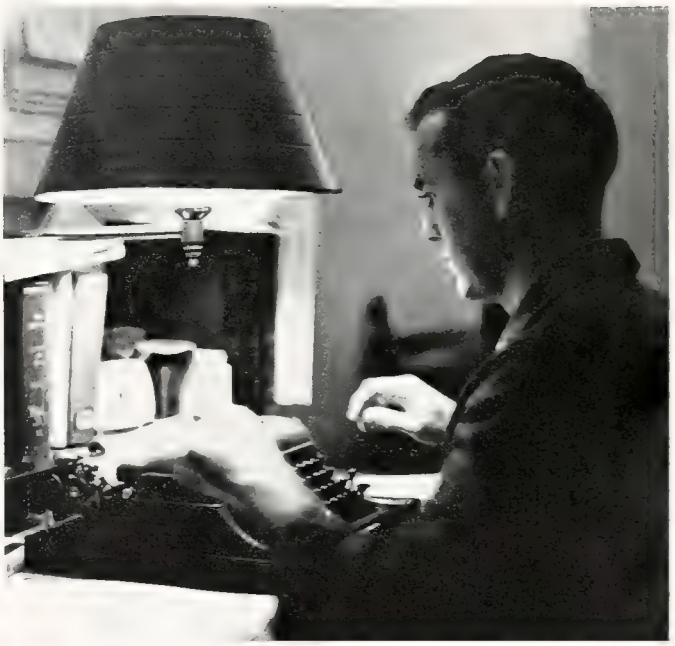

Scholarly students study 'side sundry sites.

Final exams . . . the grade doesn't include posture.

Studying is work, at the Commons or anyplace else.

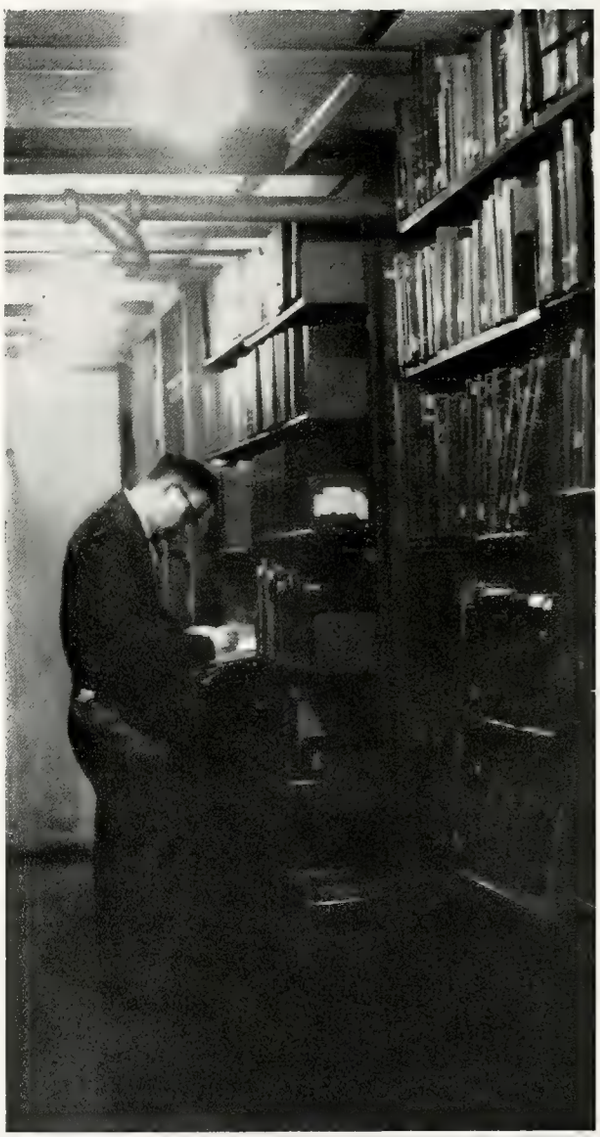

T...e...r...m...(space)...p...a...p...e...r typist

In 1824, a small State Seminary of ten students was started in Bloomington. One hundred thirty-one years later, the institution . . . now a university with nearly 13,000 students . . . is expanding still more with a new Union, a Humanities Building, and a Law Building. Indiana University is a school of progress whose structural development is closely connected with its educational advancement.

Students today take for granted the modern facilities of the many new buildings, and few realize that the "old" places like Maxwell and Alpha Halls once represented progress. Today the past of the University is emphasized by the atmosphere of tradition which many of its structures create.

Catalogue and pen . . . standard equipment in the library

A lifeline to an education, an IU in miniature, an integral part of the University...

this is a division. It is a stepping stone,

a solution to an education for those persons who must remain at home, work throughout the year,

or increase a grade average.

It is a university in one's own backyard,

a vital vein in the great system of education.

Through this vein flows the knowledge which gives the students... understanding...

inspiration... evaluation... introspection.

When a student has finished his job,

he can say to the world...

"I have studied... I have worked... I am complete."

On the verge of steel and oil, natural beauty and educational enlightenment

Oblivion of all but study

Calumet

Founded 26 years ago,
The Calumet Division serves
the western part of Lake County.
Its main office, built in 1939,
is located in East Chicago; however,
classes meet in Hammond as well.
Over 1,270 students enrolled this Fall.

Each center usually offers a subject in adult education which is unique to other University branches.
Calumet has a popular series of lectures on "Crime and the Criminal in Modern Society." Another course is "Writing for Fun and Profit."
Today the Division has an extensive business program in addition to a good English department.

The Calumet and Gary Centers
co-operate in giving a special Certificate in Accounting. This is awarded to students who complete a specified curriculum of 47 hours, 27 of which must be in accounting.

Earlham

The Earlham Division is a joint organization operated by Indiana University and Earlham College. Two buildings in Richmond have been used since the Center's founding in 1946. They have enough room to accommodate any further increase in the present enrollment of 440 students.

Credit courses which are taken at the Center are transferable to either institution as long as the student meets the regular requirements. Like most IU divisions, Earlham has a well-developed business program; however, its arts and sciences courses are equally as good. Noncredit subjects include "The Ice Age in Whitewater Valley."

Carefully prepared movies enhance the learning process.

Informal discussion stimulates clear, rapid thinking and effective speaking.

Something for everyone

Kokomo

The Indiana University Center at Kokomo is now in its 13th year. Since 1944, it has grown steadily in both enrollment and the number of courses offered. Today there are over 800 students attending classes. Of these, approximately 500 persons are taking credit courses which fulfill the requirements for a degree.

The Kokomo Center has followed the rest of the University in requiring every undergraduate business student to pass a comprehensive written examination in his junior year. Other students, who are taking subjects which satisfy their personal interests, are offered such popular noncredit courses as stock-market analysis, real estate, and retailing.

The Center buildings have been improved this year. The conference room and the lecture room, known as the Coach House, were remodeled. A student lounge was built, and several rooms were redecorated.

The Center also sponsors a number of extracurricular activities such as the Civic Theater Group and the Foreign Film Series.

Fort Wayne

Founded in 1917, the Fort Wayne Center is the second oldest division. In Spring of 1957, it had an enrollment of 2200 students, making it the third largest IU branch. The Division now uses rooms in Central High School and a building which was first put into use in 1939.

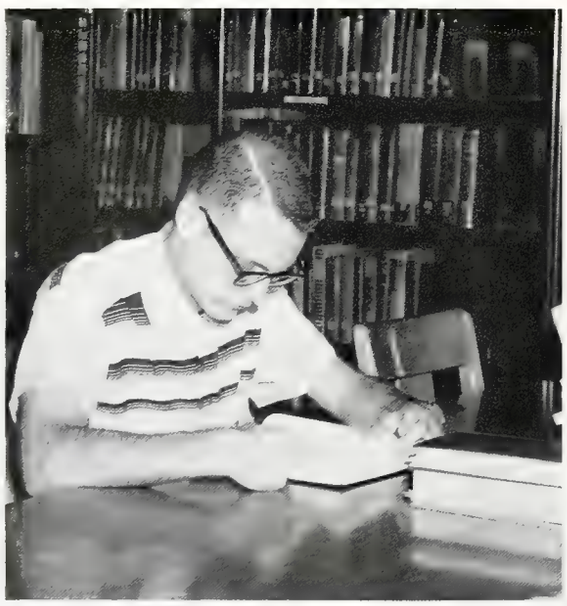

Through an arrangement with the Art Center in Fort Wayne, a student may progress towards an A.B. degree in fine arts or a B.S. in art education. The Center provides social sciences and humanities, while the art school offers applied art courses.

Special noncredit lecture series are offered to Fort Wayne residents as a means of broadening their education and fields of interest. Among these courses are such subjects as insurance, "The World Struggle for Power and Peace," and home furnishing.

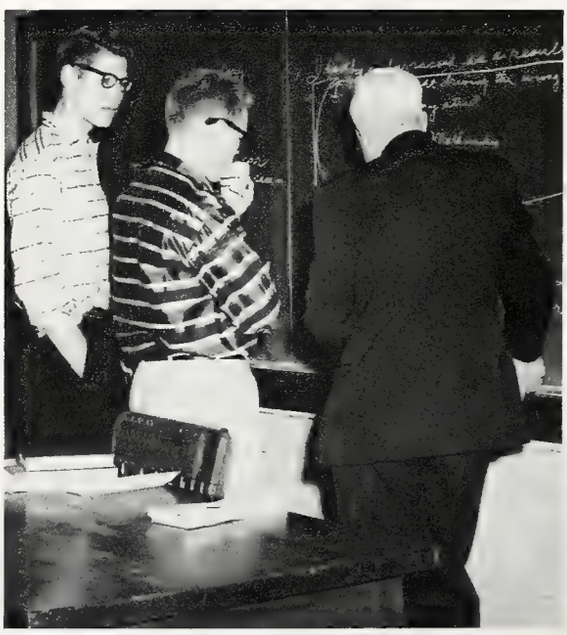

The Fort Wayne Center now offers a variety of awards to students enrolled at the Division. Among these are partial fee-remission scholarships which are given to valedictorians and salutatorians of Indiana high schools.

Gary

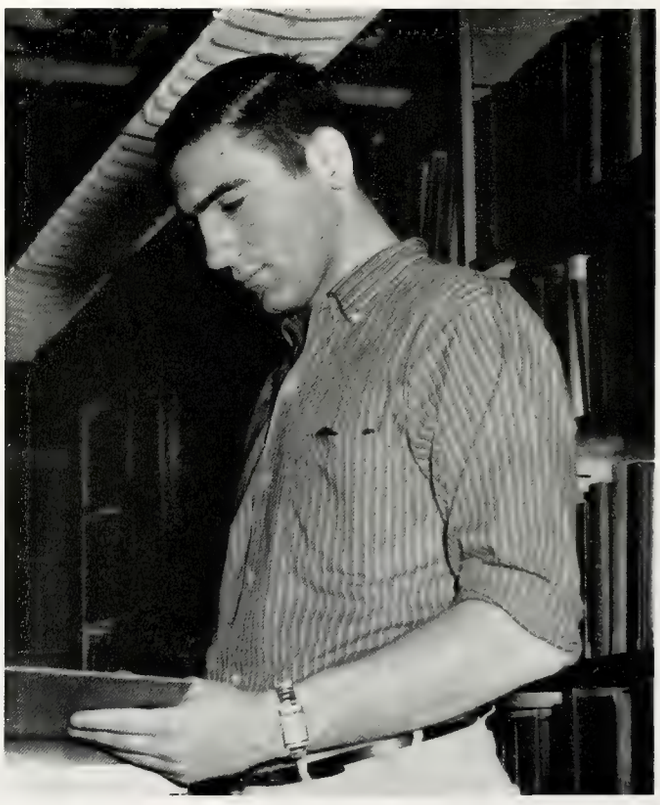

The Gary Division was founded in 1948. A large, modern building is now being built to replace the present one. It will be completed in the Summer of 1959. The Center has an enrollment of over 1600 students, most of whom are following undergraduate courses. There is, however, a limited number of postgraduate courses. The Center also has an adult-education division which offers residents an opportunity to pursue special or vocational interests.

The Gary Division Library contains over 10,000 volumes and is open to students 12 hours a day. The students themselves operate a newspaper which is called the Ingot. Outstanding scholars are eligible to receive one of several organizational awards which pay for part or all of the student's tuition.

Indianapolis

Founded in 1916, the Indianapolis Center is the oldest Indiana University division. In 42 years, it has grown into one of the largest IU branches, with an enrollment of 2675 students. The Center now occupies two buildings at different places in the downtown sector of the city. One of the buildings contains offices and classrooms; the other houses an extensive library. Because of the nearness of the Medical Center, several undergraduate courses for nursing and dental hygiene are offered, in addition to the regular studies.

Division students are permitted to use the new Student Union, which has a dance floor and swimming pool. Their representatives serve on the Union Board, which provides numerous social activities. A Student Council is elected by the Center student body.

A witty instructor and an occasional humorous incident are appreciated by a receptive class.

In a small, informal group, the class can profit from a free exchange of ideas.

Jeffersonville

The Southeastern Center at Jeffersonville was founded in 1941. It had an enrollment of 391 students who attended classes in one room of Jeffersonville High School. Since then it has grown to an enrollment of 1381 persons, only 77 of whom are full-time students. Many persons from Kentucky and the southernmost parts of Indiana attend the classes. Until recently, the Center occupied quarters in various high schools. A new building, however, was completed last December. The structure was dedicated in April, when President Herman B Wells attended the opening. The 600,000-dollar edifice provides facilities for classrooms, a library, several science laboratories, and administrative offices. It is the only Indiana University class building which is completely air-conditioned.

The Center has a very active extracurricular program which includes a Student Council; Alpha Delta Kappa, honorary fraternity; and a student newspaper, the Southeastern Student.

Concentration is included at this informal conference.

Pencils fly as the lecture goes on.

Conversation and relaxation are synonymous as coeds find time for a break.

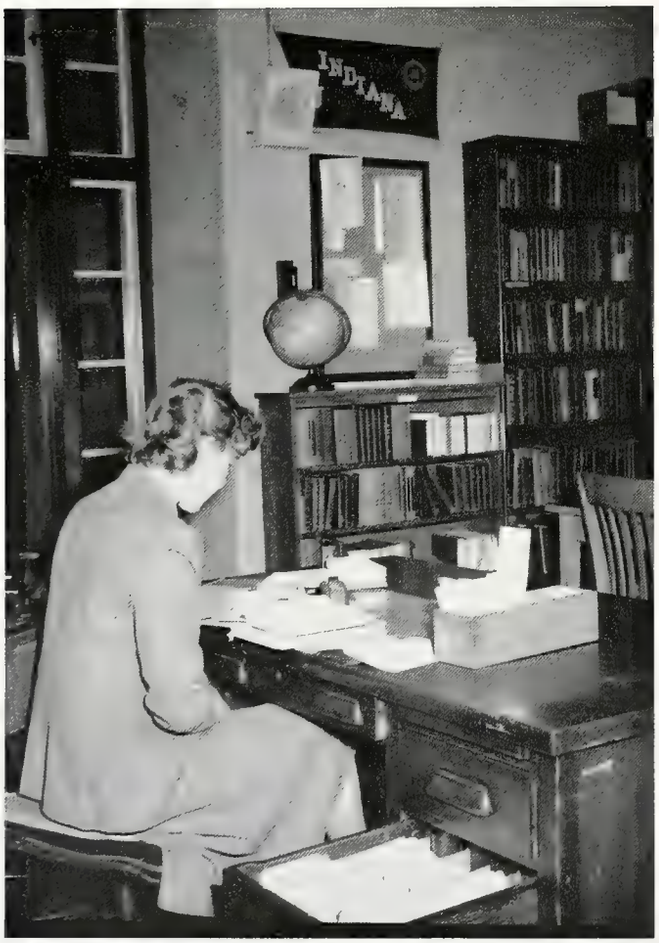

South Bend-Mishawaka

The South Bend-Mishawaka Center is the largest division, with an enrollment of 3786 students. Because of its size, the Center holds classes in the YWCA, as well as in Central High School. Architects are drawing plans for a new building which will consolidate the Center in the future.

Since its founding in 1933, the Division has expanded not only in enrollment, but also in the educational program itself. Today it has one of the most extensive adult-education programs in the state. Adult residents of the two cities are offered everything from speed reading to gerontology, problems of the senior citizens. For students who plan to get a college degree, there are the usual preparatory courses. There is also a limited number of postgraduate subjects offered.

The South Bend-Mishawaka Center is a school which is as complete in activities as it is in classes. For French students, there is the Alliance Francaise, a national club. For persons interested in journalism, there is the quarterly IU Center News. Any Division student may belong to the South Bend Center Student Council.

Quiet surroundings are essential for effective study.

Everyone has his own favorite study position.

Vincennes

The Vincennes Division is the newest IU center. In 1950, the Division of Adult Education founded the Center to serve southwestern Indiana. Since then, enrollment has continued to grow to its present peak of one hundred eighty-five students. The Division is operated by Vincennes University in cooperation with Indiana University. Classes also are presented in Washington High School in Washington, Indiana. A range of courses is offered throughout the fields of adult education and graduate and undergraduate instruction. Several unusual courses offered for adult education include such subjects as oil painting, contemporary drama, and ceramics. There are also regularly scheduled business and education programs for all fully enrolled students. A few graduate courses in education are offered, including psychology of individual differences and the administration of elementary schools.

Man is not man...He is Men

A test flunked, a pin returned, a game lost, an argument started . . . and thus a person becomes unhappy. Some keep their problems to themselves . . . others seek the help of a friend to share their worries. Sharing problems with each other gives the moral support which helps people to face life's troubles.

Happiness grows and grows when it is shared. An amusing incident, a funny joke, a wonderful time . . . makes a closer friend. A group of people together . . . and laughter becomes contagious. Sharing experiences, good and bad, gives fuller meaning to friendship and greater understanding of each other.

Early in spring, the campus begins to prepare for one of the greatest collegiate events in the United States, the Little 500. The whole Little 500 weekend is a classic within itself . . . a whirling, pulsating, hustle and bustle of activities and special events. Since the first race began in 1951, its popularity and importance have steadily increased among the students and nation at large. In 1956, over 15,000 people attended the race.

Today, everybody gets in on the act! Men ride in the race. Women's housing units sponsor all-girl tricycle teams in a Miniature 500. Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Gamma sororities compete in the Little Little 500. There's the Sprocket Hop held in the Men's Quad, the Theta Chi Bicycle Bounce, and the Acacia Ice Cream Social. The whole, glorious round of celebration is climaxed by the race itself Saturday afternoon and the Little 500 Variety Show that night.

The next evening, dead-tired students sit down at desks and try to crack a book. The gaiety is over. They cringe at the thought of approaching finals. The students try to concentrate but can't . . . they think back over the fun-filled, madcap weekend and . . . "It was great!"

The rushee steps inside and arms reach out to welcome her, then suddenly the warmth and friendliness of the girls envelop her and she is at ease. This is sorority rush . . . anxiety and nervousness, but a common bond of understanding and appeal.

It's a night of fun and lightheartedness and the climax of many weeks' work.

In early fall, housing units throughout campus choose themes for their shows. The booths they build take ingenuity, planning, and plenty of work. For weeks before the big night, skits are practiced, costumes made, and material for the booths gathered. When at last the night before the Carnival comes, everyone goes to the I.U. Fieldhouse and begins to put up their booths. Some working through until noon the next day, the weary students build the stands. If anything goes wrong, they must improvise quickly, for time is their enemy. Only a minor fire, quickly extinguished, mars the final hours of preparation.

At last, the hour is here. The doors open and Indiana walks in to see the wonders of the House of Wax, the Red Sullivan Show, Little Cal City, and "Can It Be Done in Eighty Days?" One can never quite see all the gaily decorated booths, and it is only when weariness calls him home that he finally leaves the Fieldhouse and the Fall Carnival.

To many students, the faculty are only shadows who exist from nine to five o'clock. When their official jobs are done for the day, their reality ends for the students . . . until the next morning. The only time that a student thinks of faculty members as being individuals is when he needs the advice or help of a teacher.

The faculty member teaches during the day, holding a position of importance. He is a person who is respected and admired; but despite the position of dignity which he holds in the eyes of many persons, he is a man. When he goes home at night, he is just another citizen, a church member, a next-door neighbor. He likes to relax as much as any student, to laugh and to talk, to enjoy a pleasant evening with good company. Only the students who work with faculty members in outside activities or organizations have the chance to look past their superficial titles . . . to find the human beings.

Despite the difference in age or experience, the faculty member leads a life very similar to that of a student. It is one of fun and sorrow, hopes and disappointments, friends and enemies. He has his own personal problems, his good and bad days. There are times when he doesn't want to go to work. either; but because his responsibility is great, he comes.

While teams fight hard, fans subconsciously are in the thick of battle . . . blocking that player, making that basket, or driving in a last intense effort to overtake the man ahead to win the big race.

Sadness follows defeat, and elation accompanies the win. The greatest part of sports spirit, however, is that of pride, pride in the team that does its best. Pride is that unmeasurable quantity that drives a team along the wave of victory or supports it when its best is not good enough. Half the strength in a game is the combined spirit of the crowd and the team. With it, no team can be little. Without it, there can be no team.

Voting requirement: one must be an I.U. student.

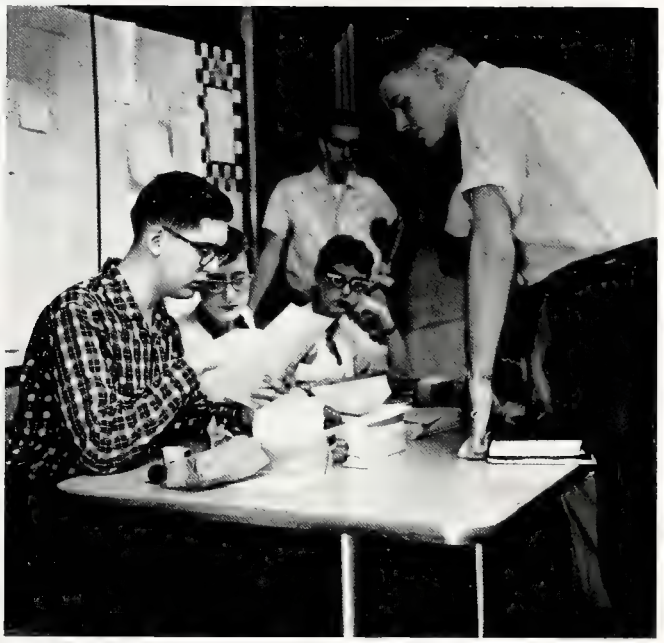

Convention delegates applaud their party's candidate.

Students return to school, and they begin again the conventions and campaigns which fill the political year on the I.U. campus. This is one university activity in which every student may take a part. At this time they are all citizens, student citizens, voting for their future campus leaders and organizers.

As the Independent and Organized Parties vie for the various campus offices, the students themselves can consider the platforms of the parties and the merits of each candidate. To many individuals, class elections are occasions of seriousness, chances to gain experience in the practice of the democratic process of government. Campus politics and elections are to many the I.U. version of national and international affairs.

An extended pause before the performance

Music is a part of every individual,
a way of expressing one's inner feelings.
It is not always confined to well-organized groups. Some persons find satisfaction
in the late-hour jam sessions
which result in a friendly little band.
Other individuals fulfill an ambition by singing with a dance band or perhaps by belonging to a musical group.
For some people music has a purpose...
not in education or culture...
but in life and love.

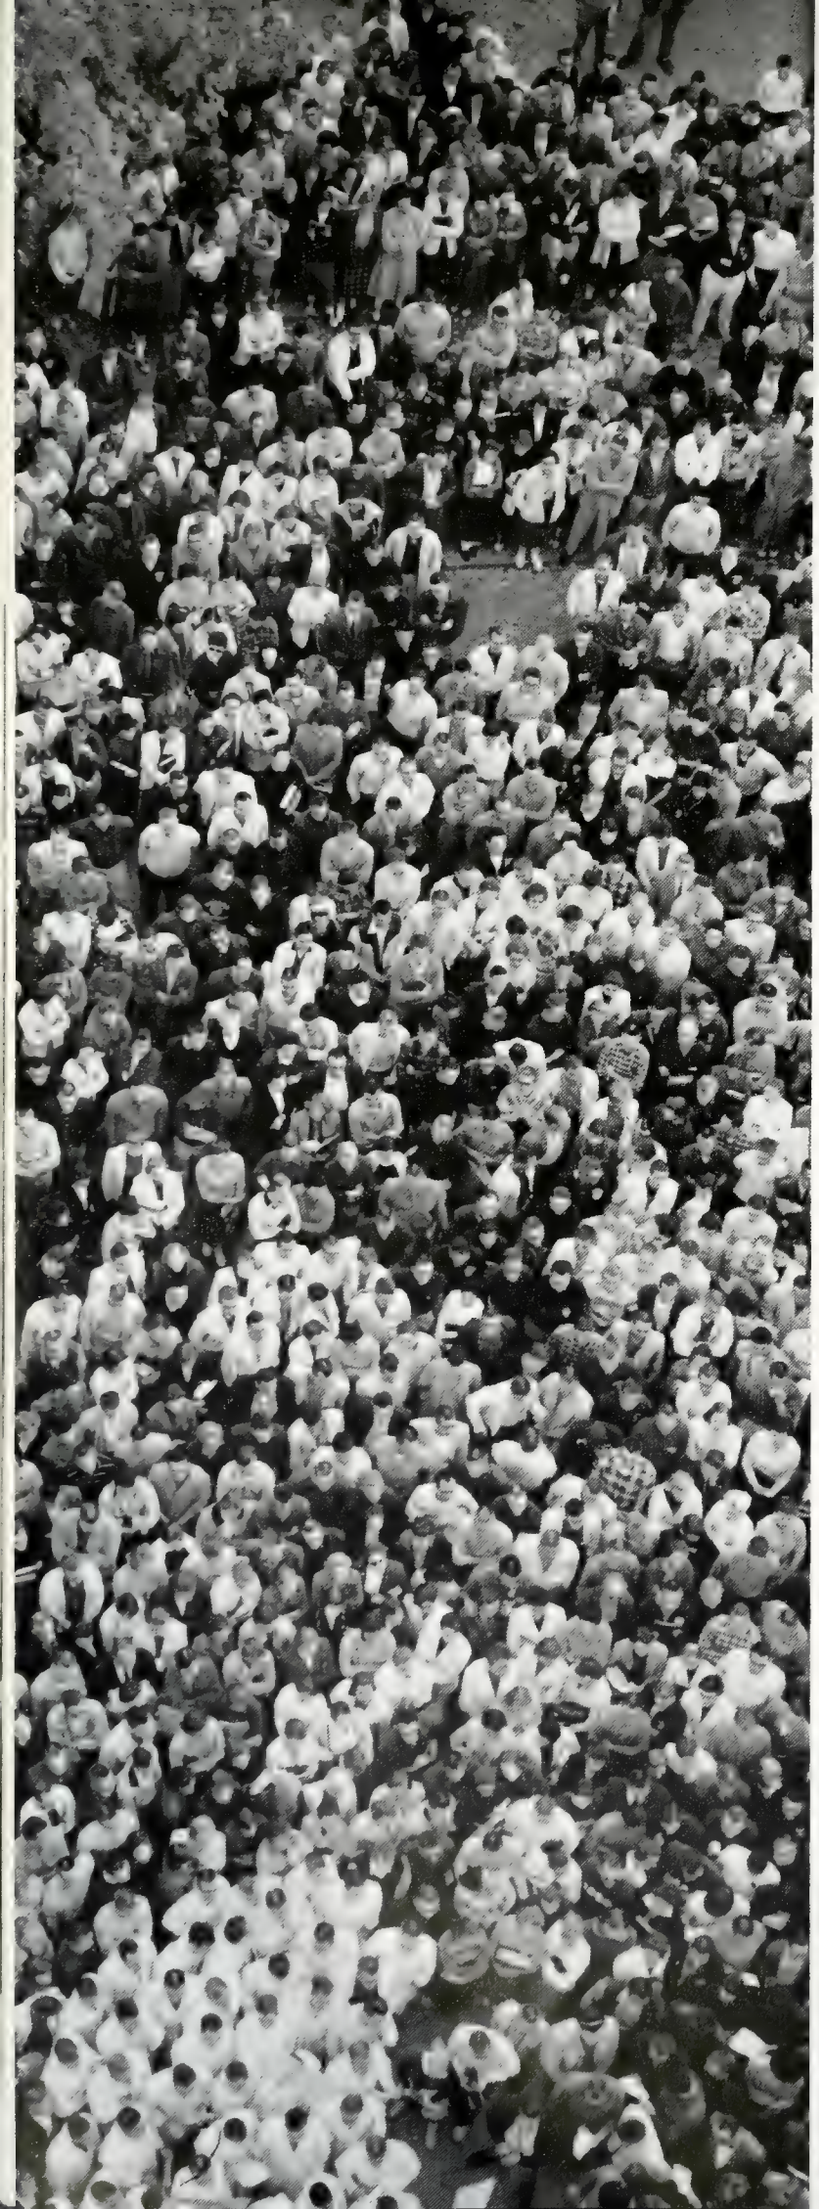

And their joy was heard in the melodies ... in the songs of American tradition

Music in its many forms starts with a man and his instrument.

Suddenly the battle of the brawn is on and the men pull as if their lives
depend upon drawing their opponents into the muddy Jordan
A little give, a little take a few shouts, a few cheers
but still the conflict continues
A moment of suspense as both teams remain adamant
The rope is stretched taut
Then a little more brawn . . .
or is it spirit? . . .
and with a yell of defeat
the losing side goes tumbling into the water
It is over Muddy and wet
the losing team is helped out of the Jordan
by the jubilant winner
Grudges vanish, giving way to mutual weariness.

The first glance at a problem shows to the student
only a maize of intertwined difficulties.
Through the confusion which its newness creates comes the feeling that this particular problem

Finally through the confusion comes a ray of understanding.
Then the exhaustion, mental turmoil,
and the problem itself disappear,
giving way to the assurance that one has learned.

"The first issue of the Student is presented thus . . . with allegiance to no faction, subservient to no motive of exultation, pure in tone, seeking the common good . . ." This has been the policy of the Indiana Daily Student since its first publication, issued on February 12, 1857. By reporting campus, national, and international news, it has grown and become an important part of Indiana University. In the past 99 years, it has changed from a four-page, monthly paper of three columns to a larger, daily publication. Such men as Ernie Pyle, war correspondent, and William Lowe Bryan, former University president, have edited the Student, helping to make it one of the best college dailies in the country.

Working on the Student is an adventure of experience, valuable throughout life. Jobs are available for reporters, photographers, businessmen, and editors. Individuals learn by their mistakes. They learn that working in a large organization carries heavy responsibility. Facts must be checked! Articles must be proofread! Deadlines must be met!

Today approximately 45 journalism students work an average of 15 hours a week in one of the busiest buildings on campus, the Ernie Pyle Memorial Building. With all their work and long hours, journalism students still find time to relax. At the end of each semester they have a "Swing In, Swing Out" party at which new staffs are announced and outstanding staff members are honored.

The Arbutus? Yes, it is a yearbook . . . a collection of pictures . . . of people . . . and events . . . a reference book for blind dates . . . and in later years a pleasant reminder of days past. But to the people who made it, the book means much more than this.

To its creators the Arbutus was a test of abilities and responsibility. May 15, the day it is released, is the culmination of all the work, all the failures, all the successes . . . and mistakes. It is the end of late hours spent in the office and the constant feeling of pressure which weighs upon most of the staff. For the first time, the people who made it . . . the photographers, the copy writers, the typists, and the organizers . . . for the first time they see their work in print. Then they judge themselves and their work.

In enrollment chaos, the annual got some subscribers.

Shades of reality

Shaped by the private within, expressed to share

Art is man's attempt to capture life and form. Down through the ages, he has tried to represent it in the materials about him. With clay and stone, metal and paint, he has struggled to portray life . . . as he sees and understands it. Our heritage is his success and his failures.

Students who study fine arts can learn through the study of art in classrooms and through its practice in studios. From the classrooms they gain a knowledge of the masters and their methods. In the studios, they make use of what they have learned. Plain, lifeless materials are combined and transformed into gleaming beauty in the substance of a stone statue, an oil portrait, or a piece of jewelry. This is the artist's greatest reward . . . to progress by his own skill and effort to the culmination of his talent and ideas.

The unseen waves of communication ... the airborn pulse of the century

Experience and education become one, as Indiana University's Department of Radio and Television gives its students the opportunity to participate in all phases of radio and television production. The department has two basic purposes . . . to train its students thoroughly and to bring entertainment, education, and information to the public.

The small Radio and Television Building houses the department; news and events of the world serve as its lifeline. With the radio work centered around WFIU and television programs relayed to Station WTTV for transmission, the department offers students experience in a continually expanding field of broadcasting. Through the work of the students and the staff of the radio and television department, the University and the state are both educated and entertained.

From early Fall to the last days of June, campus politicians work to give the student body an efficient self-government. Popular and unpopular issues are raised, and the student body praises, criticizes, or ignores them.

A third party was formed as a compromise between the Organized and Independent parties. Discriminatory clauses were debated over many weeks. It was recommended that women not wear sports apparel in the Commons, and the Senate Elections Committee set a precedent by disqualifying the freshman Organized slate for not registering on time. Unfortunately, the Student Body never realized the time and deliberation which went into decisions that effected the whole campus.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Indiana University helps to fulfill the future military needs of our nation. The program is devoted to classroom and drill field instruction. The total program, however, contains many activities. The Army contains Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, and Pershing Rifles, drill team. The Air Force has honoraries for both underclassmen and advanced students. Sabre Air Command is composed of basic trainees, while advanced candidates for officers belong to Arnold Air Society. The Air Force also has a drill team and a recently formed Angel Flight for women. The most important campus activity sponsored by the military department is the Military Ball, presented every Spring.

Music rises from man's creativeness

A reflection of a Creator

Sousa, Verdi, Beethoven, Berlin . . . this is I.U. music, a collection of the works of all ages and all styles. In the School of Music there is an organization for every musical interest. Several popular singing groups, including the I.U. Queens, the Singing Hoosiers, and the Belles of Indiana, have toured throughout the United States and to foreign countries. The Marching Hundred also travels with the athletic teams to various games and meets. Classical productions are presented by the Symphony Orchestra and Opera Workshop. These are perhaps the best known musical groups on campus; however, there are many others which are equally as good.

Belonging to any one of these organizations takes work and time. Some persons may have joined them because they are in the music school, and others, simply because they like music. The long hours spent rehearsing give the organization members valuable experience and training.

Led by competent, respected instructors from the School of Music, these groups not only provide musical entertainment for campus and publicity for the university, but also make available to students a chance to combine activities and enjoyment with college credit.

The student theater is to many persons a world of hope, hard work, and ambition. Their efforts are rewarded by great personal satisfaction of their achievement and a public appearance of themselves and their work. Even to other persons who are not a part of it, the student theater offers entertainment, an evening's enjoyment, a minute's rest from daily routine.

Elements of the old and the new, the classical and the modern, can be found in the many plays which were presented by the students. "Petticoat Fever," "Antigone," "Dial M for Murder," and "Picnic" . . . these plays are representative of the great variety which existed in this year's productions.

Throughout the years University officials have developed an entertainment program whose purpose is the appreciation of outside culture. As a result of this program many productions are brought to campus from all over the world.

The Auditorium, Convocation, and Celebrity Series presented a great variety of cultural performances. "No Time for Sergeants" was the first Celebrity Series production this year. Among the other plays was "The Rivalry," starring Agnes Moorehead and Raymond Massey. This Auditorium presentation was followed by the world-famous pianist Claudio Arrau. Both the Indianapolis and the Boston Symphony Orchestras appeared at the Auditorium for concerts. The Obernkirchen Children's Choir of Germany, which became known to the United States through television appearances, was the final presentation of the "Aud" Series.

The Celebrity Series brought back popular Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera star. The Convocation Program brought the Dublin Players and their presentation of the play "Juno and the Paycock." For those interested in journalism, Edward Weeks, literary critic and editor of the Atlantic Monthly, was a guest speaker for the Convocation Program.

Indiana University has established several systems to help students pay their ways through college. With the aid of the Student Employment Office, a student may find work as a small-town reporter, as a clerk in the Bookstore, as a waiter in a University dining hall, or even as a babysitter. If he has sufficiently high grades, he may apply for resident or academic scholarships. Among the many scholarships awarded each year are the "Little 500" grants, which receive their money through the famous "Little 500" bicycle race. Last year over a hundred working students each received one of these grants.

A graduate student has the advantage of higher-paying positions. While he is attending the University, he may even work as a graduate teaching assistant in the department of his choice. He may obtain a counselor's scholarship which appoints him counselor of one of the halls of residence and which provides him with room and board for the year. He may also be eligible for a Fulbright or Rhodes scholarship. These scholarships send a student abroad to study.

Even the G.I.'s are not excluded from an aid program. Through the G.I. Bill of Rights approximately 2000 veterans at IU are receiving financial aid. Many of the hundreds of foreign students on campus are also being helped by the exchange-student program.

Many local stores largely supported by students are largely staffed by them too.

IU students help maintain the buildings that they use.

One out of many tiring, boring, disgruntling lines

Lines of tables, lines of workers . . . and lines of registrants

All this just for an education?

Just as one thinks it's over . . . "Subscribe?" "Buy?" "Give?"

Confused and frustrated, anyone? Take it in your stride. This is only enrollment and registration, the time which all students eagerly anticipate as they buy compasses and gather maps of the Fieldhouse. Actually, the system of enrolling has been greatly simplified and condensed in the last few years, but as for registration . . . hundreds of students still wander around the center of the Fieldhouse, clutching in their hands orange and white IBM cards and schedules of classes. After finally deciphering the small subject signs over the tables and waiting an hour or two for the instructors to come back from lunch, the student suddenly discovers that he is in the wrong line. Eventually he does enroll in all his courses, but he now faces a 7:30 class.

And where the key is but a pen

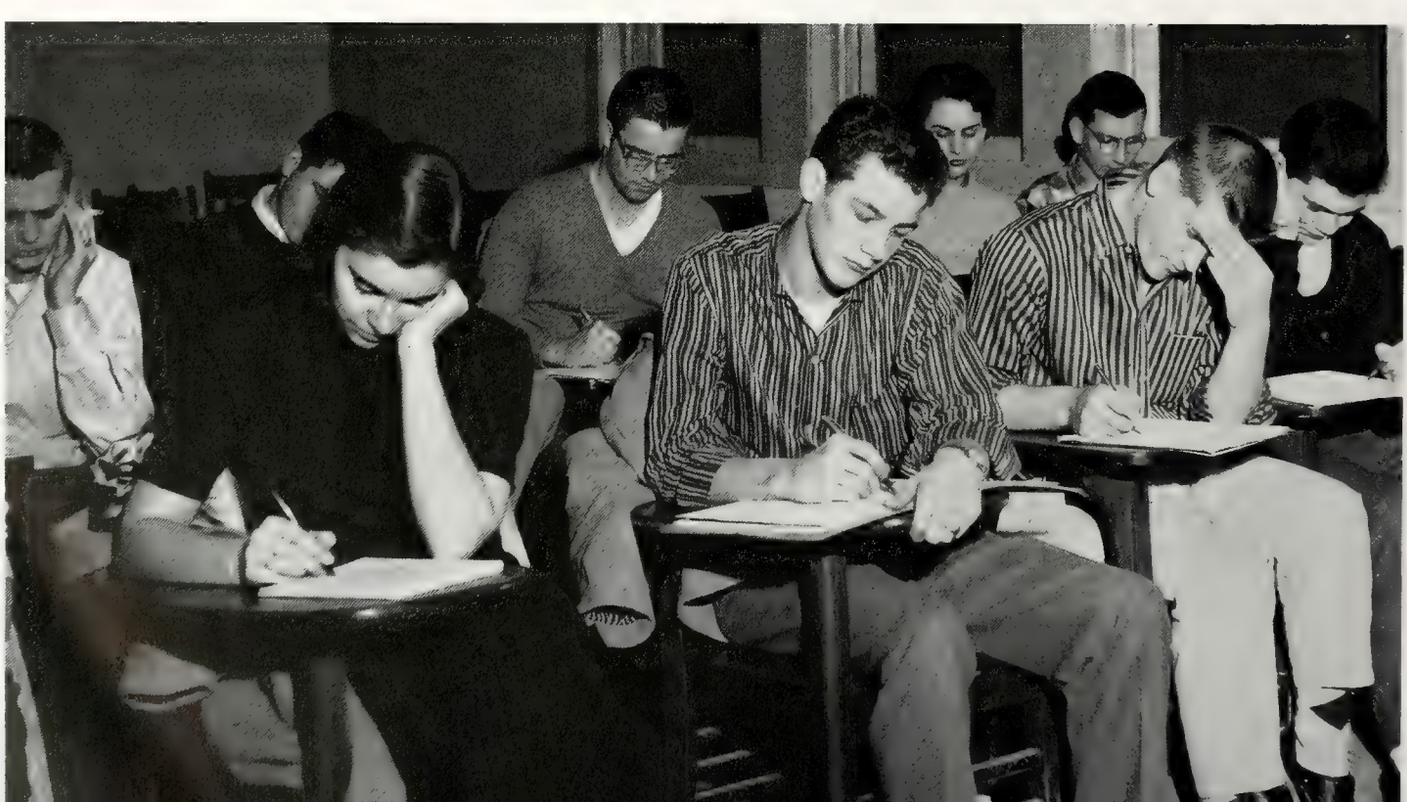

behold the glittering treasures

Reciting dates, theories, and facts,
students file slowly into the exam room.
These are finals; these are the times which will tell the result of the study, or its lack, which has gone into a semester's work. As the tests are passed out, the students experience a final wave of despair and anxiety . . . then there is time for nothing but the questions and problems.
The two hours which students spend in each final may mean the difference between passing or flunking the course. Those who have studied well throughout the semester may "ace it,"
and others might just "luck out."

The result of the test and the course is a grade, a promise to oneself to do better, or pride in one's work. It may mean the monthly check from the government or the scholarship that keeps a person in school.
Whatever the result, finals will roll around again the next semester, bringing with them
the same worries, the same fears . . .
the same question, "Can I do it?"

Heads are silently bowed as the final goes on.

Surrounded by success, an atmosphere of quiet satisfaction

A moment of joy, of relief, anticipated for four years.

The end of a beginning . . . this is graduation. Four or more years of learning are climaxed in the diploma which each graduate receives.

Commencement brings with it both joy and sorrow, for it closes the pages of one of the happiest chapters of life and opens to another that is more serious, yet more fulfilling. Some students may work towards an advanced degree, but for most the part of life spent on campus . . . the classes, the exams, the activities . . . suddenly ceases to be. Formal education of books and research ends with graduation. Most education now comes from living with other people and learning from life itself.

As the graduate receives his diploma, a new world opens up to him. He is no longer one among a few . . . in a student body. He is one among many . . . in an adult community. The cap and gown are replaced by the suit of responsibility. The education which he has received provides the basis for a job in his chosen vocation. Natural ability, the incentive to work, and his reaction to surrounding competition will direct his advancement and success. School gave him the wings. Graduation gave him the license. Now . . . sky's the limit!

President Wells

for the past year, has combined his duties as a college president with those of a delegate to the United Nations. President Wells was U. S. representative on Committee Four, the Trusteeship Committee. The Committee's most important function, according to Dr. Wells, was "giving administrative help to countries on their way to independence."

While in New York, the President kept in touch with University activities through wires and correspondence. When his advice was needed, he was telephoned. During weekends that he spent on campus, he completed necessary paper work of his office, and attended faculty and council meetings and campus functions.

This year President Wells moved from his home, one of the oldest in Monroe County, to the president's house located on campus. Once occupied by former President Emeritus William Lowe Bryan, the home was remodeled for the convenience of Dr. Wells and his mother, Mrs. Grandville Wells.

Distinguished Award Professors

Byrum E. Carter

Byrum E. Carter, associate professor of government, is the youngest recipient of the Frederic Bachman Lieber Award. This award is given for excellence in teaching. Dr. Carter respects the intelligence of his students and demands the use of their ability.

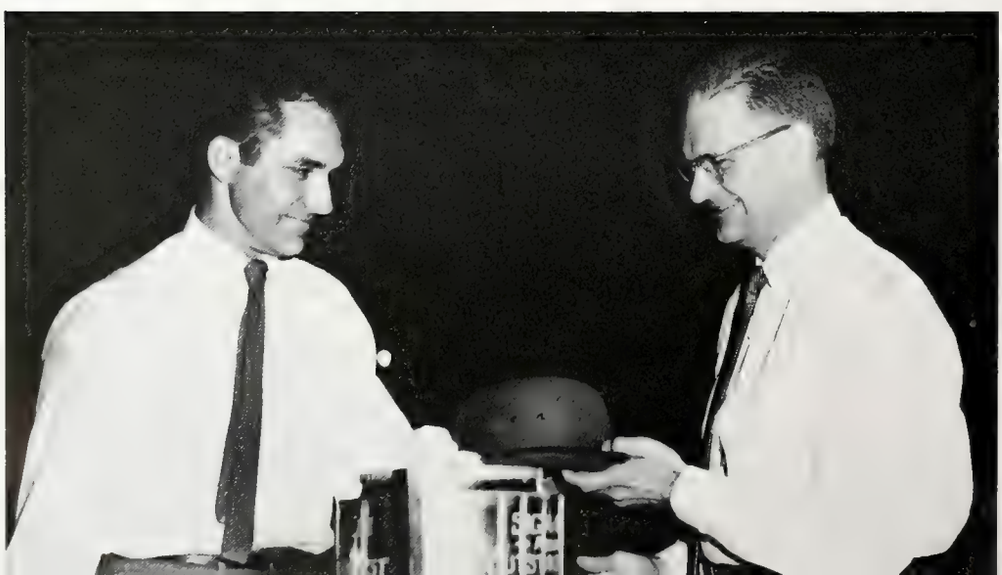

Emil J. Konopinski, professor of physics, was chosen as the winner of the Leather Medal Award. The award goes to the faculty member who has done the most to bring distinction to the University during the past year. Dr. Konopinski was the first expert to state that it was safe to build a hydrogen bomb without destroying the universe.

Emil J. Konopinski

Merritt Lawlis, assistant professor of English, was the 1956 winner of the Brown Derby Award. Philosophy Professor Henry B. Veatch Jr. is two-time winner of the award which is presented each year to the "most popular professor" by Sigma Delta Chi. Dr. Veatch, winner of the award in 1954 and again in 1957, is known to his students as a dramatic and lively lecturer.

Distinguished Service Professors

Jerome Hall

K. P. Williams

Tracy Y. Thomas

John R. Moore

T. M. Sonneborn

H. J. Muller

The title of Distinguished Service Professor was first bestowed upon three professors by the Indiana University Board of Trustees in 1953. Only four other scholars have been honored by receiving this title since that time.

Professor Jerome Hall, School of Law, is one of the 1957 selections. This outstanding legal scholar has brought distinction to himself and to the University through his legal writings and lectures.

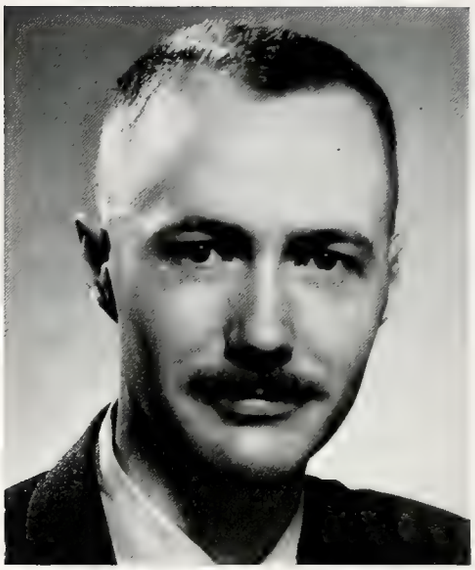

K. P. Williams, professor of mathematics at IU since 1909, was also selected in 1957. He is author of Lincoln Finds a General, a book describing the Union side of the Civil War.

Professor T. M. Sonneborn, Department of Zoology, is one of the University's best-known scientists. Chosen in 1953, he is famous for his studies in genetics and cancer research.

Professor H. J. Muller, Department of Zoology, was also chosen in 1953. He is the recipient of the 1946 Nobel Prize in Medicine for his studies of the effects of x-rays on living organisms.

Selected in 1956, Professor John R. Moore has been teaching English at IU for 35 years. He is the world's leading authority on the life and works of Daniel Defoe.

Professor Tracy Y. Thomas was also selected in 1956. He has written several articles and memoirs on his researches in mathematics.

Robert W. Thompson

Professors in the News

Professor Robert W. Thompson, Dept. of Physics, discoverer of the Theta particle of the atom, is now directing the construction of the world's largest cloud chamber for the study of cosmic rays.

Professor Samuel Yellen, Dept. of English, is a well-known writer of fiction and poetry. He recently published a book of short stories entitled The Passionate Shepherd which won critical acclaim.

Indiana University has grown in importance partly through the energies of Professor Henry Hope, Chairman of the Dept. of Fine Arts. A leading figure in national art affairs, he has built the I.U. department into one of the nation's leading art schools.

Professor Allan Mitchell, Dir. of Research in the Dept. of Physics, is a representative of the university and one of the leaders in the Midwest University Research Association. The organization was set up in the hopes of constructing a giant atom smasher. This project would involve cooperation among all universities.

Professor S. F. Otteson, Director of the Bureau of Business Research, has the major responsibility for his bureau's bringing fame to the School of Business through its research and publications. Business Horizons is a new quarterly publication just begun this year.

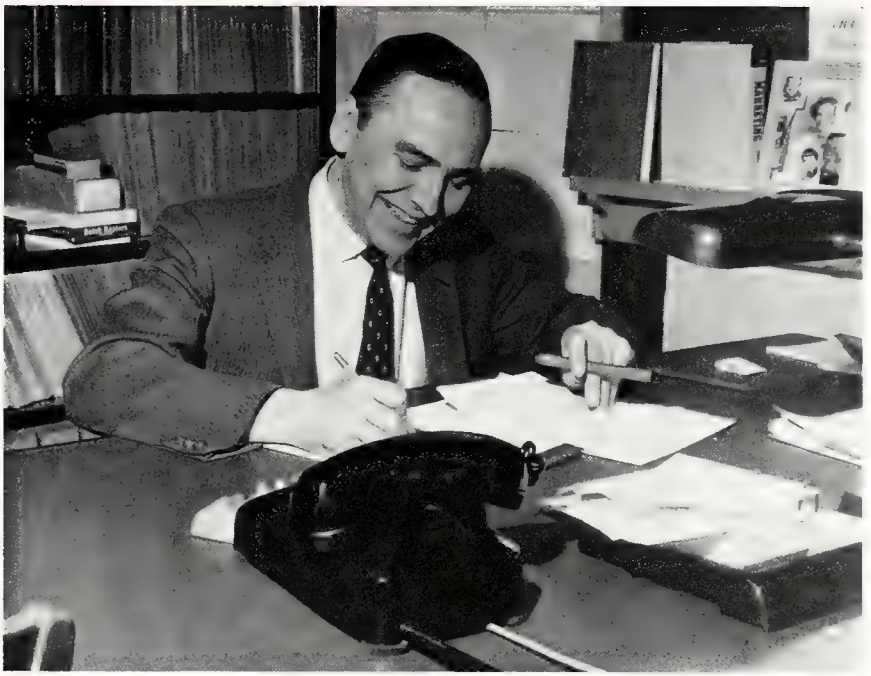

Professor Walter H. Laves, Chairman of the Dept. of Government, was a representative to the United Nations and was on the governing board of UNESCO. He is consultant for the technical assistance program of the U.N. This program was set up to help other countries economically.

Counseling

Robert H. Shaffer, Dean of Students

aids students in the solving of various problems which they face during their college life. The office provides personal counseling in regard to future vocations, finances, and academic adjustment. If necessary, it refers students to clinics and other counseling agencies which have been organized to handle specific problems.

By working with campus leaders, the office hopes to create favorable attitudes, environment, and personal development for all students. A leadership training course is taught by Dean Shaffer to promote discipline and development of student government and leadership.

Leo R. Dowling, Associate Dean of Students

is concerned with all students entering Indiana University for the first time. The division acts as a transitional department through which the new student must pass before turning to his particular area of concentration.

Each student is assigned a faculty counselor who informs him of the requirements that should be fulfilled for admittance to the particular school of his choice. The freshman is also helped with any other academic problems he might have.

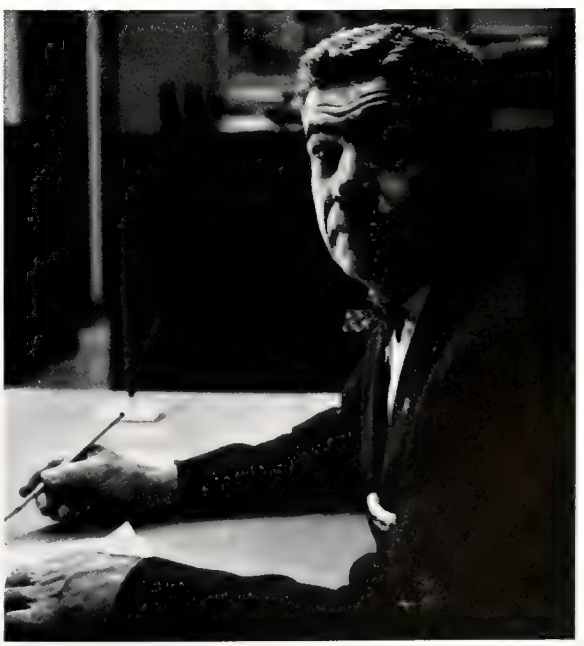

Each year the division holds a High School-Junior Division Conference. Through the conference, the Junior Division hopes to find methods of improving the first-year student's adjustment to college life.

Service Enterprises

provide food and rooms for students living in University housing, textbooks and supplies available at University bookstores, a publishing and duplicating department, and talent from throughout the entertainment world.

Indicative of the continuing progress made by this self-supporting organization are the new additions to the Indiana Memorial Union Building. Bowling alleys, craft shops, an outdoor terrace, and shuffleboard courts are included in the west wing, which was completed this Fall. The east wing, upon completion, will provide another cafeteria, a table service dining room, private dining rooms, offices, guest rooms and apartments, conference rooms, and an auditorium.

are the gears that keep a university turning. To them falls the task of keeping the records, answering the phone calls, mailing the notices, and the thousand tiny, important jobs which create order in this vast undertaking.

Many students are employed on a part-time basis by the various departments of the university. Wives of students and Bloomington residents comprise the staff of full-time employees. Separately, each person is an employee with his own definite job. Together, they comprise their own kind of team.

Virginia Rogers, Student Activities Director

Many university personnel bureaus and services have a great influence upon the student's personal adjustment to college life, health, and happiness. The Student Activities Office regulates all social and extra-curricular programs. Organized to help the student's financial problems, the Scholarship Office provides information about and distributes various scholarships that are available on campus.

International Services assists the foreign student in solving problems that are related to his personal and academic adjustment to the university. The Central Housing Office provides information regarding available housing facilities. The Office of Veteran Affairs informs the veteran of his educational rights and benefits.

The Student Employment Office assists students in securing part-time employment. The Health Service offers treatment to the student and maintains his health record. The Religious-Chapel Guild conducts weekly colloquies and provides information about all religious activities available to students.

The News Bureau collects and distributes information about organizations, individuals, and events that pertain to the university's activities. The Audio-Visual Center provides educational films and pictures.

Combined, these offices and agencies provide a foundation on which students may build toward a successful college career.

School of Business

was named the School of Commerce and Finance by the Board of Trustees in 1920. Business courses were previously offered in a two-year commercial program in the College of Arts and Sciences. The name of the school was changed to School of Business Administration in 1933 and then was shortened to School of Business in 1938.

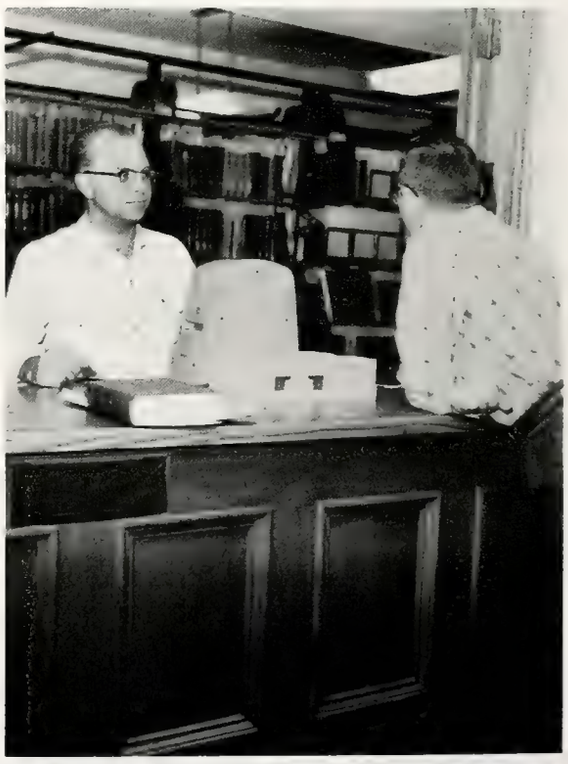

A new development in the school is the junior comprehensive examination. Its purpose is to give students an opportunity to integrate their knowledge of basic business courses in preparation for their senior year. This year the school introduced BUSINESS HORIZONS, a quarterly publication containing articles about current, live, controversial issues of interest to business executives and professors.

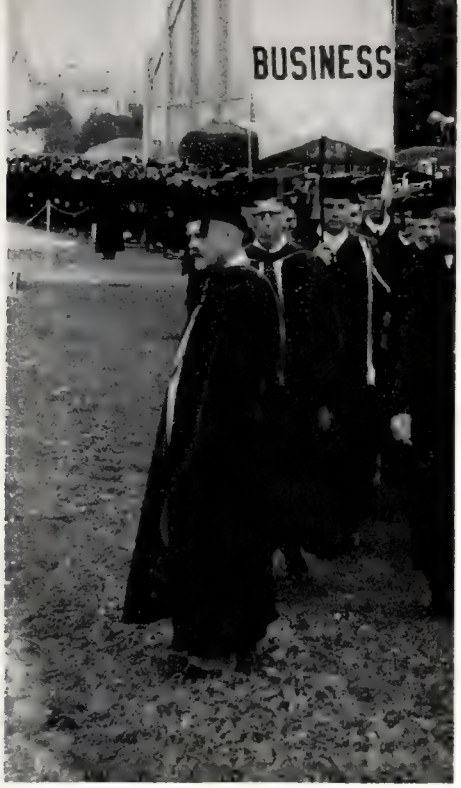

The Placement Bureau helps to place graduates in new jobs.

School of Education

in addition to developing future teachers, advises the public schools of the state about educational problems. Under the school's direction, the Division of Research and Field Services conducts school surveys, conferences, and workshops.

In an attempt to solve vital problems of specialized instruction, the new Department of Special Education offers training for the teaching of the exceptional child. A graduate nursing program is also conducted by this school.

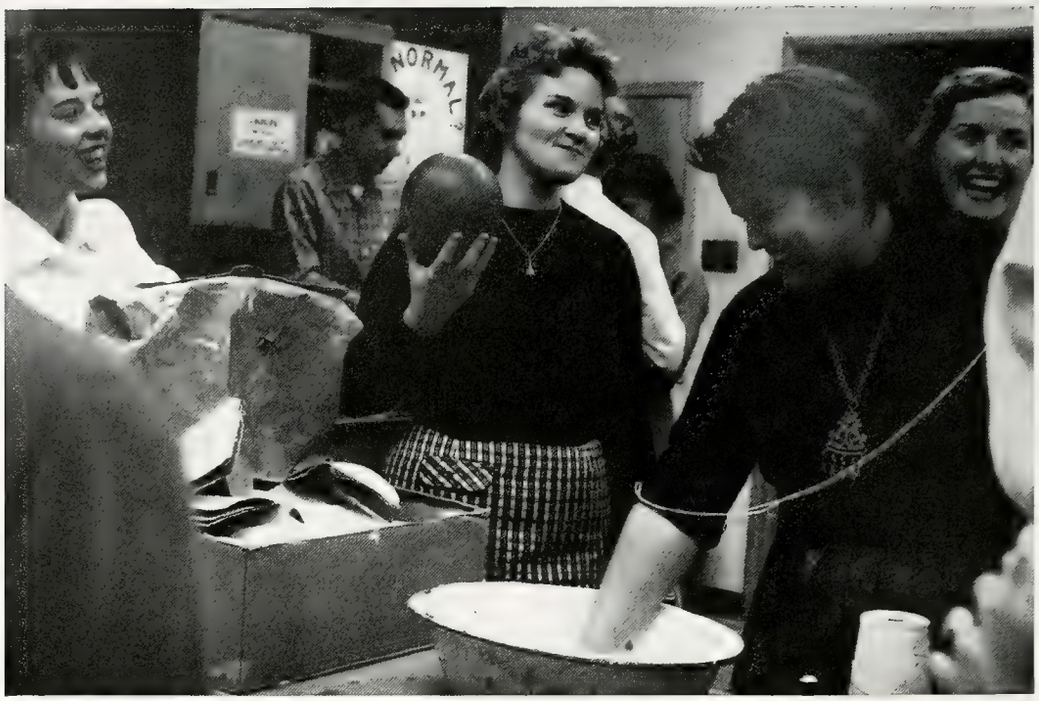

Wendell W. Wright, Dean

Playground fun . . . an enjoyable part of a day's work.

Education courses are often informal with a lot of good-natured fun.

Classes might be over . . . but not the studying.

School of Music

offers to the student
an opportunity to prepare for a career in music
and a chance to study music
for aesthetic values.
Many outstanding artists make up the faculty who teach the more than 220 courses, direct the vocal and instrumental groups,
and offer private instruction.

In keeping with the growth
of the university,
the number of students
has more than doubled since 1947,
and facilities of seven buildings
are accessible to them.
Plans are now underway for another building to be constructed behind the School of Music Building.

School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation

has a new director this year, Dean Arthur S. Daniels.
Moving into the 3½-million-dollar addition to the Fieldhouse, whose plans are underway, will provide the Department of Athletics
with better facilities
for offering a wider range of recreational courses.
Additional progress is shown by the plans for a new athletic plant.

Bradford Woods, a camp maintained by the school, provides a laboratory for developing future recreational leaders.
It also gives children
an opportunity to enjoy outdoor experiences.

Arthur S. Daniels, Dean.

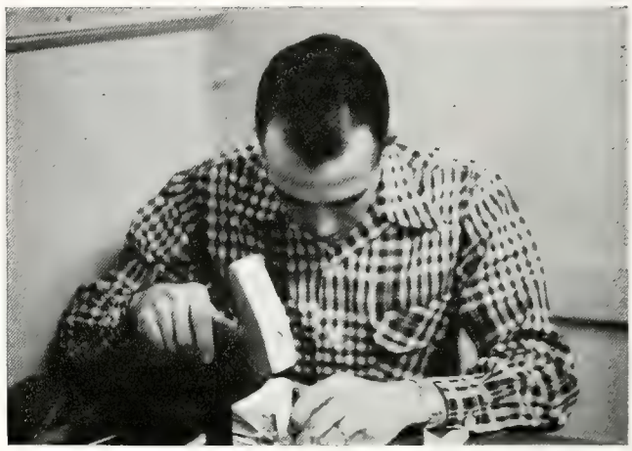

The women study the "fine arts" of HPER.

Locker rooms are orderly and clean . . . an indication of a smoothly running organization.

Coordination of mind and hands

. . . necessary attributes for HPER excellence.

School of Law

was the first state university
law school in the Midwest.
Highlight of this year
was the dedication of the new building
when honorary degrees
were conferred upon Chief Justice Earl Warren; Herman C. Krannert, industrialist and president of Inland Foundation;
and Kurt F. Pantzer, attorney-at-law.

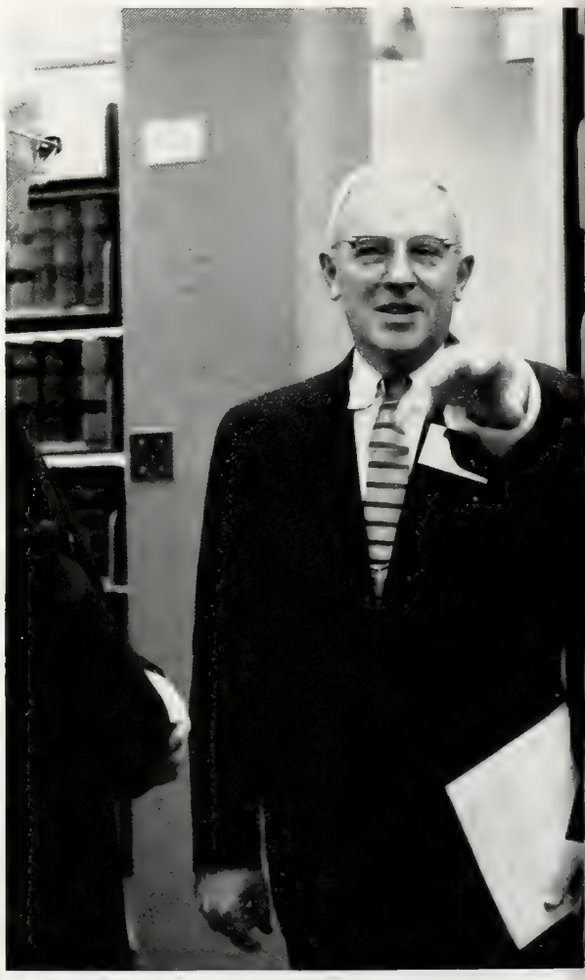

A five-year grant of $250,000
from the Inland Foundation has aided in the development of an experimental
program in legal techniques.
This grant provides funds
for an increased teaching staff
and for scholarships and fellowships.

Law library is a quiet retreat for serious study and research.

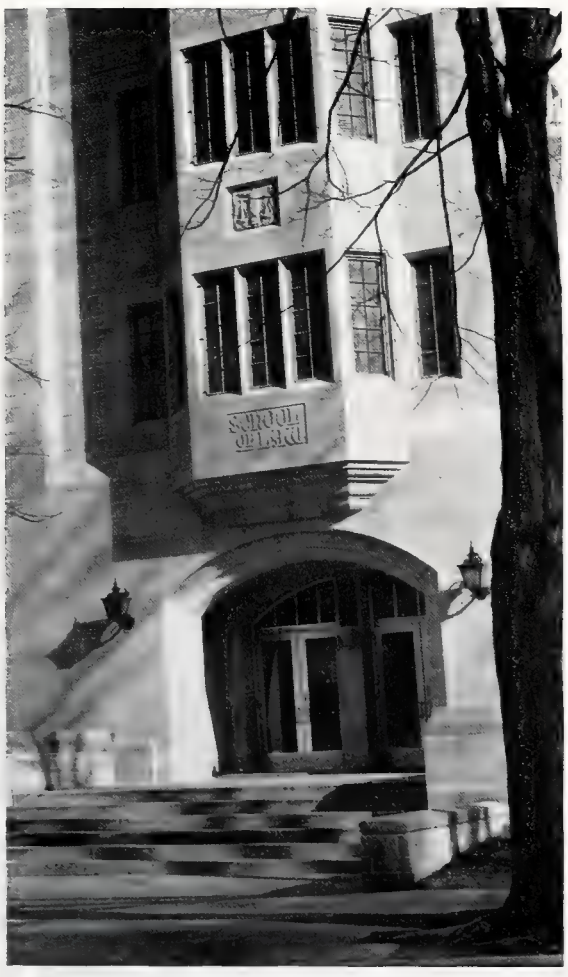

As problems are shared, solutions are shared.

School of Medicine

is at the medical center in Indianapolis.
Students in their final three years
have access to the hospitals, clinics,
and residences that are maintained here
through the aid of state
appropriations and memorial donations and funds.
Through these facilities,
opportunities for extensive instruction,
practical experience, and research are provided.

Construction of the six million-dollar
Medical Science Building is to be completed in 1958.
At this time the first-year curriculum,
which is now taught on the Bloomington campus,
will be moved to Indianapolis.

Records are kept up to date.

School of Dentistry

was the ninth dental school in America and has been active
for 75 years.
The fundamental courses for the first year
are offered on the Bloomington campus, while courses for the remaining three years
are offered at the Medical Center in Indianapolis.

The final years of study involve diadactic work and clinical practice.
Facilities are provided for this experience in the Dental School Building,
for which an addition is being planned.
The student may study to be a general practitioner or he may specialize in one of several fields.
A program for dental hygienists is also offered.

School of Nursing

was established in 1914 as a part of the School of Medicine at Indianapolis.
It enjoys the benefits of instruction and clinical experience that is provided by the faculty and hospitals of the Medical Center.
A new addition to the Ball Residence for Nurses was completed this fall.

The school has previously offered a three-year diploma and a four-year degree program, with first-year classes of the degree program
being taught on the Bloomington campus.
The diploma program, however,
will be discontinued after August, 1959.

No one really sees a touchdown
A set shot, or a two-base hit
No one except the player
His feat is reward for hours of work
A childhood dream come true
A dream of heroism with a rusty water pistol
Of whisking a pig-tailed princess to safety
On the cross bar of a two-wheeled silver stallion
It is a buttress of hope that holds the head high
And welds the shoulders into twin barricades
Against the unknown, the future
I want to... I can... I will... I will

Phil Dickens, Head Football Coach

Although the signing of Phil Dickens, Head Football Coach at the University of Wyoming, heralded the dawning of a new era in IU football, his one-year suspension by the Big Ten Conference for alleged illegal recruiting laid bare one of the basic reasons for Indiana's football demise . . . lack of interest in football by many alumni and friends of the University.

Coming to IU with Dickens was his entire staff, which included Bob Hicks, line coach later appointed coach in charge; John Townsend, line coach; Lou McCullough, end coach; Wilbur Stevens, backfield coach, and Bernie Miller, assistant backfield coach.

The competitive spark blares the dissonance of contact, conquest . . . the whistle sounds the pitch-type of civilization.

Truth wears a worried mask.

Running, walking, then falling forward

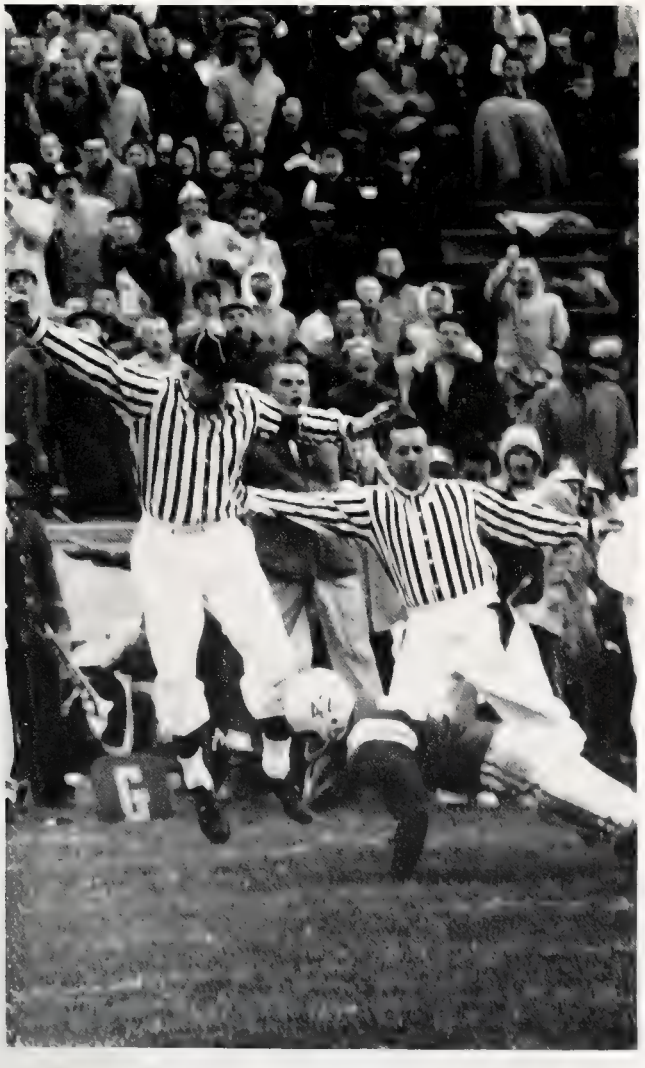

The 1957 IU football team began its season under a double handicap . . . it was forced to play without the tutelage of its new coach, and it had to adapt itself to a new style of play, "The Side-Saddle T."

Although the team finished the season with but one victory, and that over a nonconference opponent, Villanova, several factors augured well for the future.

This year's harvest of freshman talent, with a year of practice under the single-wing system, will add depth to the squad; the schedule will give the team a chance to develop into a more cohesive unit.

Several lettermen . . . Mike Raybold, Norm Craft, Tony Alosio, John Razmic, Tom Kendrick, Steve Filipowski, and Vic Jones . . . will be returning. Finally, the team itself. This was not a squad of the play-dead variety. It took its licks, and came back with more of the same. As the season progressed it became evident that although in some cases ability was lacking, there was never a shortage of determination.

The referees' dance signifies IU tally.

The 1958 IU soccer team improved its previous season's showing handily by climbing from fourth to second place in the Midwest Collegiate Soccer Conference.

Forced to juggle his lineup, Coach Joe Guennell's changes were well-justified. At season's end Reginald Horseman, Isidro Echeverria, Geza Czull, Tom Turpin, and Ilan Rothmuller were named to the all-conference team, with Rothmuller also being chosen for All-American honors.

Other men to watch were Bill Cogdell, Charles Cogdell, Dick Scheider, and Charles Siesky.

"Hurryin' Hoosiers"

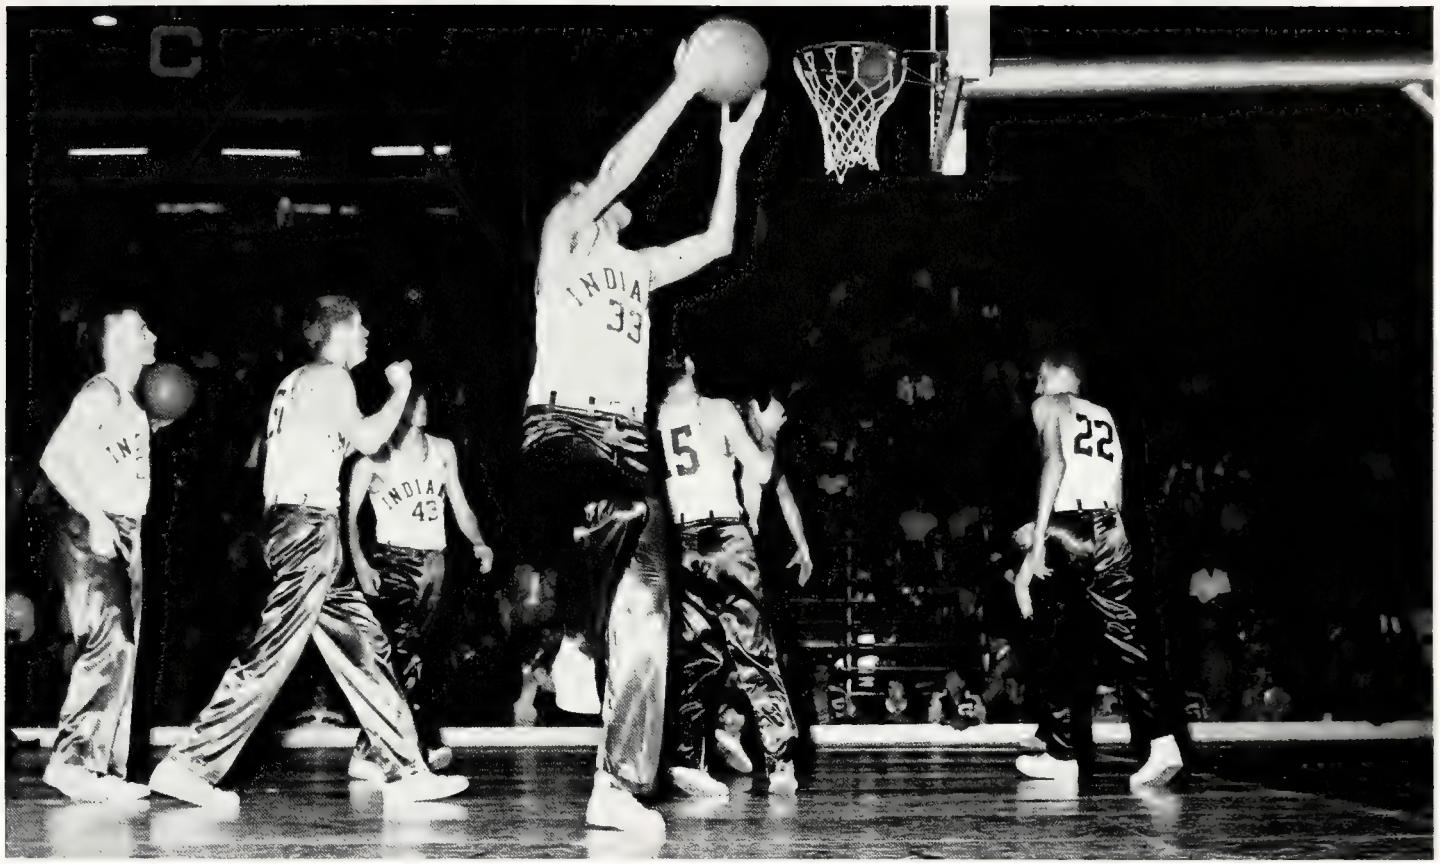

The 1958 version of the "Hurryin' Hoosiers," under the dynamic coaching of Branch McCracken, caught fire in mid-season and went on to burn a path all the way to the Big Ten Championship. This was McCracken's fourth triumph in the last six years.

At the season's start there was little doubt as to the make-up of the front line. On hand at center was All-American Archie Dees, while at the forward posts hard-charging Pete Obremskey and sharp-shooting Jerry Thompson could count on help from tall sophomore Frank Radovich.

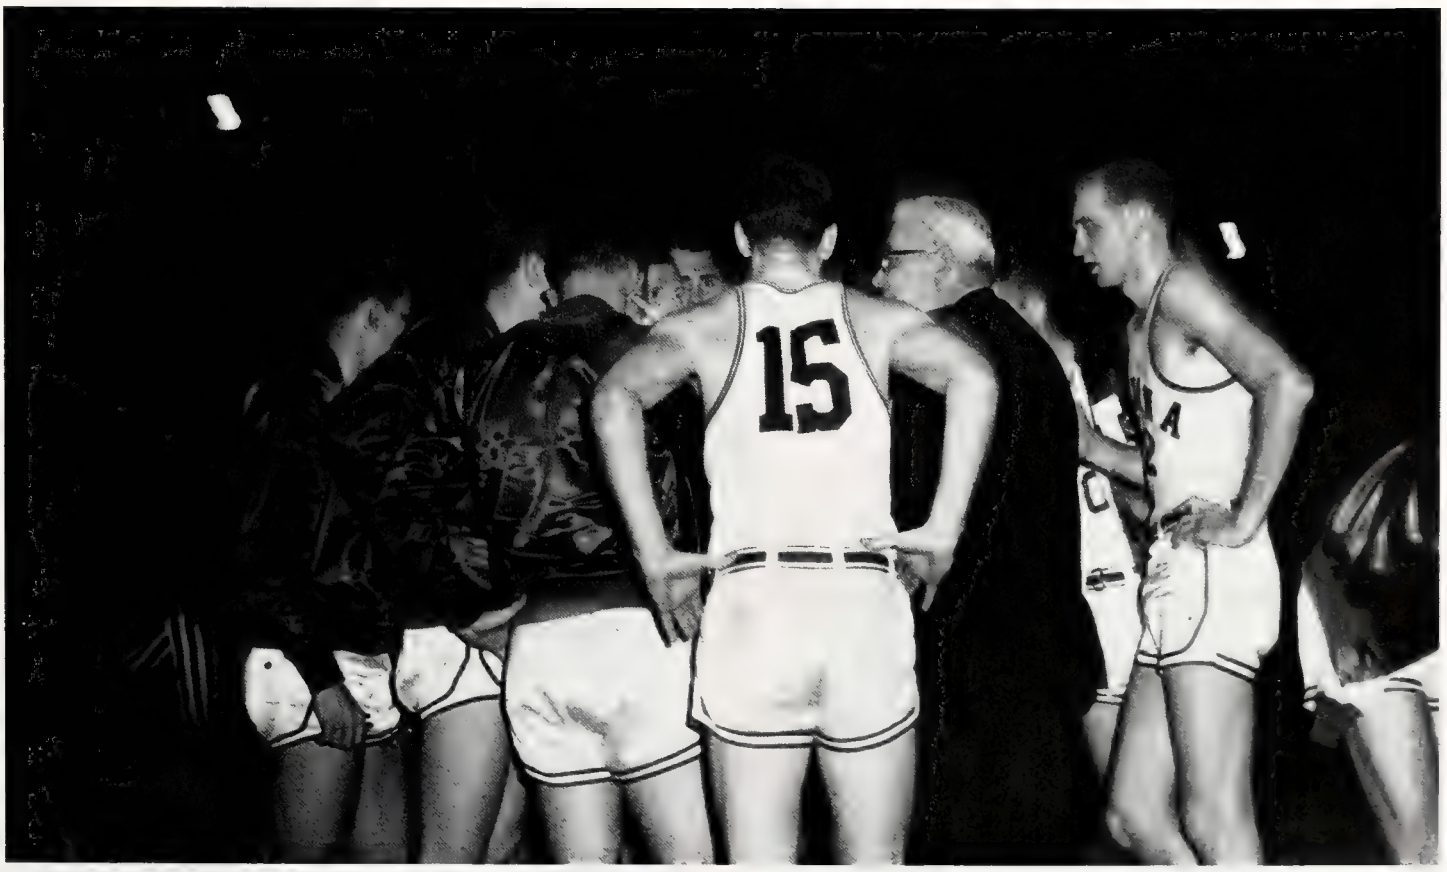

It was at the two back court spots that McCracken had cause for concern. After much experimentation, the right combination was welded from the talents of senior Sam Gee and sophomore Bob Wilkinson. Both developed good shots, and consistently harassed opposing dribblers with their fly-paper nearness.

The winning quintet, which went on to the NCAA regionals, was aided by Jim Hinds, Allen Schlegelmilch, and Ray Ball.

The Hoosiers lost the first round of the NCAA finals to Notre Dame, 94-87. Plagued by below-par ball handling and passing, the team . . . whose shooting averaged topped its rivals' . . . had an unusually poor night from the free-throw lane.

After their triumph over Michigan State, the Hoosiers were greeted at Kister's Air Field.

Excitement boils high in last minutes of State game.

Nine teams were determined to see the Hurryin' team unseated from its lofty perch. Last season the Macmen pulled a share of the title out of the proverbial bag. These nine teams were really determined.

The "experts" counted IU out because of its poor preconference showing . . . one victory in seven games. The competition, however, was of high-grade calibre. (Kansas State was ranked No. 1 nationally.)

Michigan State, with a veteran squad back from last year plus All-American Johnny Green, and Ohio State, with five lettermen seniors and All-American Frank Howard, were looked on as the best bets to take the crown.

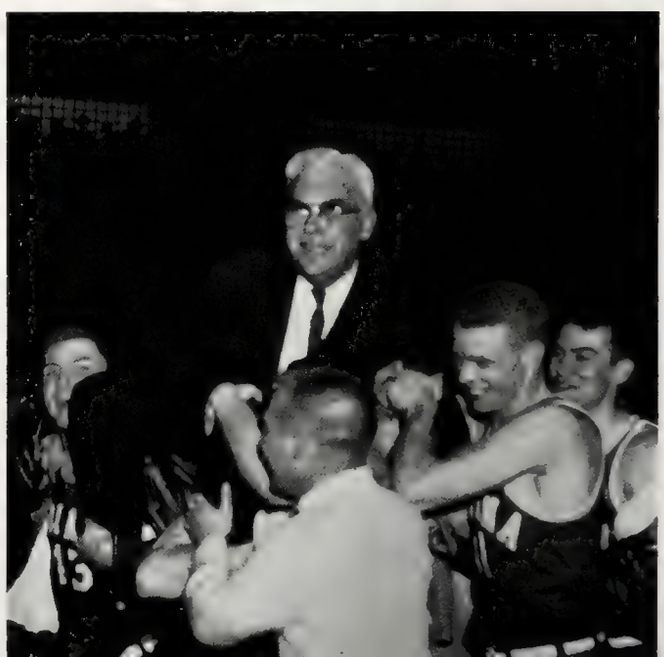

BUT, Gee and Wilkinson put fire into the ball club. Radovich, the Hammond sophomore, came up with several terrific performances as "fireman." The senior front line . . . Dees, Obremskey, and Thompson . . . lived up to expectations.

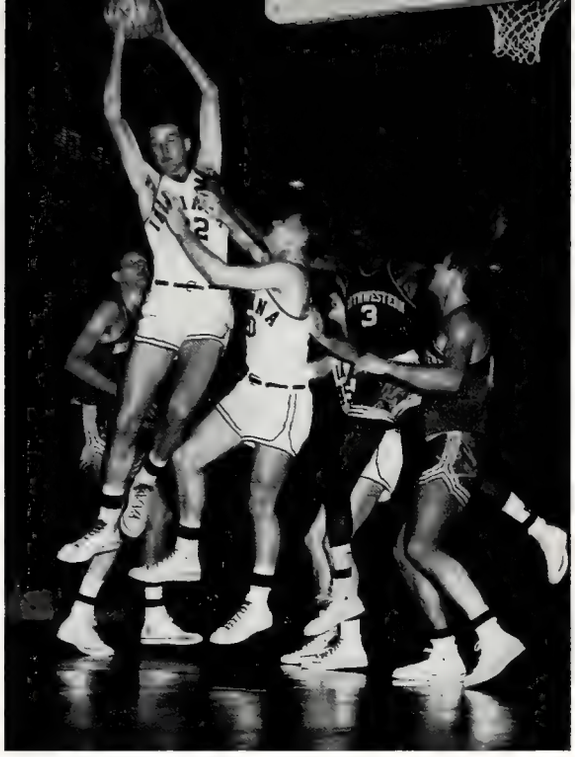

The white-haired "sheriff" molded this group into a running, rebounding, scoring, and winning team. The outcome was the title . . . Big Ten Basketball Champions.

...a test of skill

The rifle team got off to a fine start this year by finishing second in a three-way meet with Northwestern and Michigan.

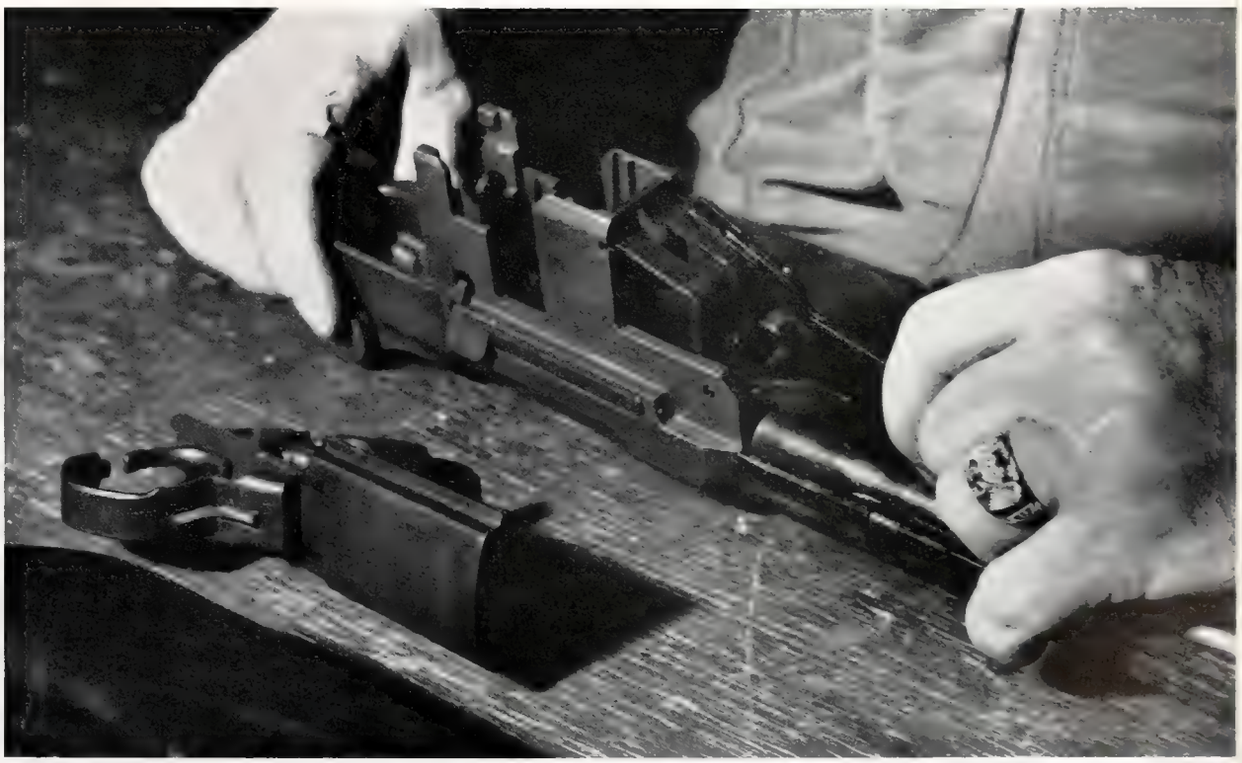

This year's squad consisted of last year's best marksmen, all of whom had shown considerable improvement. The team had a very good chance of wresting the conference title.

Top scorers were Dick Tuttle, Kim Miller, team captain; Mike Halus, rifle club president; and Bob Urdal. Other steady performers were Bob Denham and Vern Petri. Promising newcomers were Pete Rogers, Dick Mantel, and Mike Mensovich.

Skill comes from practice and the advice of others.

This year's I.U. fencing team had six men returning from last year's sixth place Big Ten unit. In experience, two members of the squad boasted unique training. Captain Harry Beratis fenced in Athens, Greece, in 1956, and also received instruction in Milano, Italy, from the Italian Olympic coach. Beratis, who fences with the epee, defeated the world's champion in one bout. Beratis also was selected twice to represent I.U. in the Big Ten and NCAA championships.

Don Scott, who fences with the foil, spent two years in Germany fencing in a series of different tournaments.

Other standouts were Ed Ehler, saber; Joe Rodenberg, epee; and Don Norman, foil.

Now if you'll just turn your arm a little more . . .

The 1958 I.U. swimming team shaped up as a well-rounded aggregation that was probably only a year or two this side of the national title. The team had been assembled by the late Robert Royer, who for years had coached I.U. champions of Big Ten, national, and Olympic caliber.

After Mr. Royer's untimely death in December, I.U.'s future in swimming was entrusted to Dr. James Counsilman. Coach Counsilman, who had been national breast stroke champion in 1942, could be considered a Casey Stengel in swim trunks.

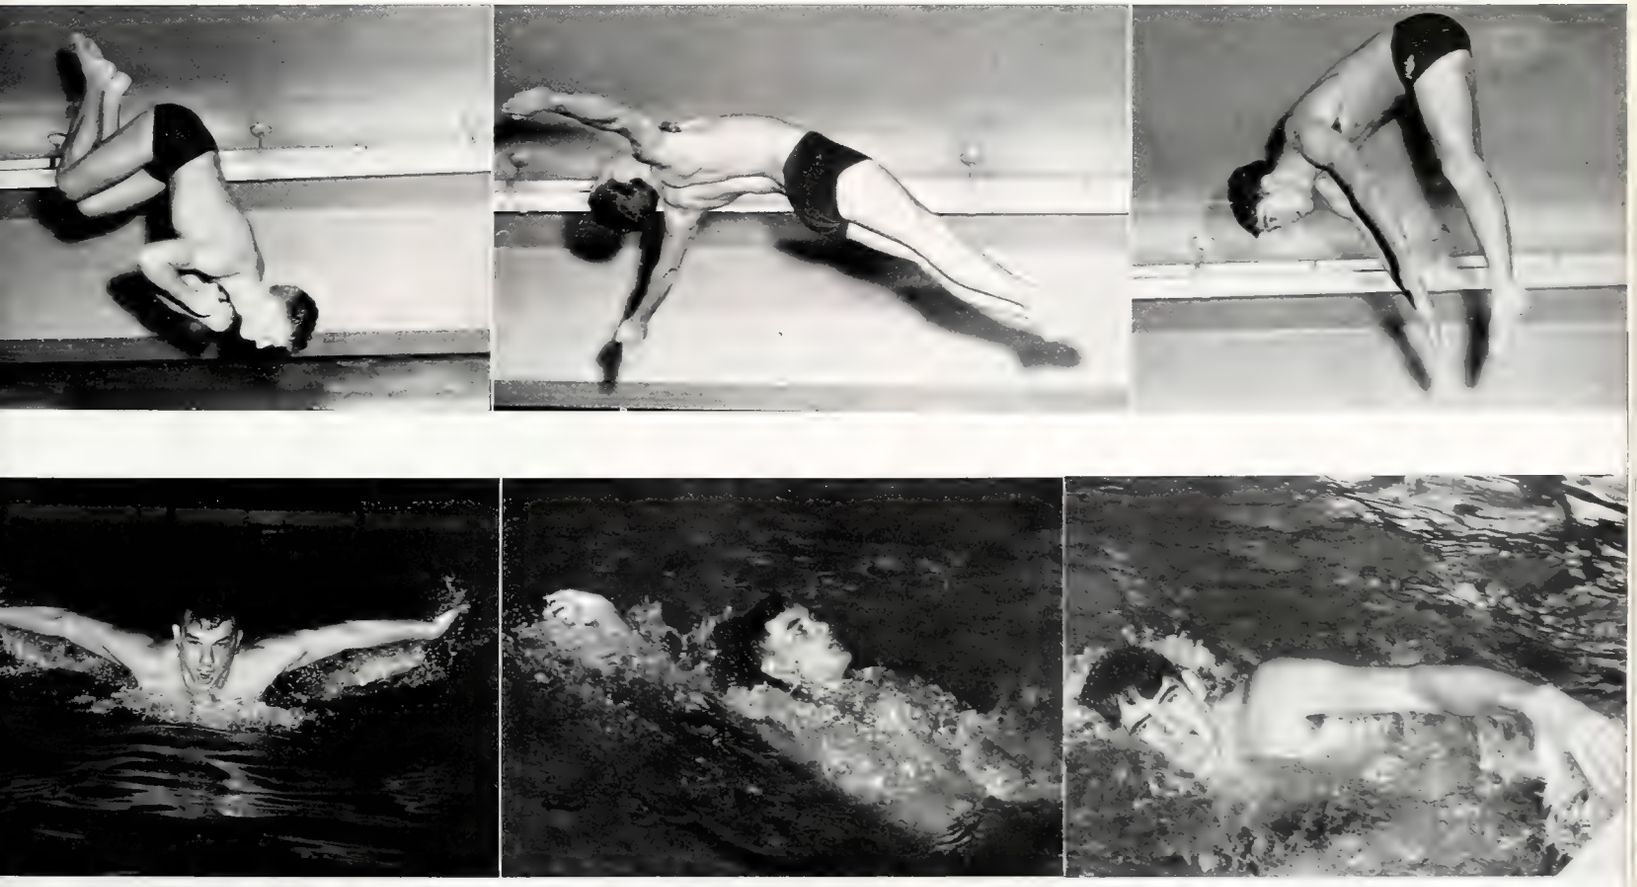

This year's team, captained by Ron Honda, had men who were hungry, and able to break records. Sonny Tanable, Les Nakamura, John Parks, Lew Cook, Barry Yap, and Dick Kennady were a few of the names to be seen in the headlines. Bob Blann and Minot Schuman handled the diving duties.

Frank McKinney and Bill Barton headed the list of talented freshmen. McKinney, no newcomer to winning ways, finished third in Olympic back stroke competition. He was also national 100 and 200 meter champion.

Barton eclipsed the existing freshman record in the butterfly event and, as the season progressed, showed signs of carving his own personal niche in the record books.

The gymnastics team, coached by Otto Ryser, posed a serious threat this season in the competition for first place in the Big Ten standings.

Bolstered by the return of such standout competitors as Ron David, Ron Walden, Jerry Wright, Panya Chottikhun, and Frank Zody, the overall strength of the squad lay in its versatility and depth. David, one of the best tumblers to develop in some time, can also collect winning points on the trampoline—and in two other events.

Outstanding performances in three different events were also turned in by Wright, whose speciality was the trampoline; Walden, who usually worked on the rings, and Chottikhun, who was the team's leading side horse exponent.

Promising newcomers were Paul Brown, Jerry Jacquin, Issac Anderson, George Fischer, Leonard Bryson, Larry Ryser, and Larry Miltenberger.

A fuzing of strength and balance.

Each twist is timed to perfection.

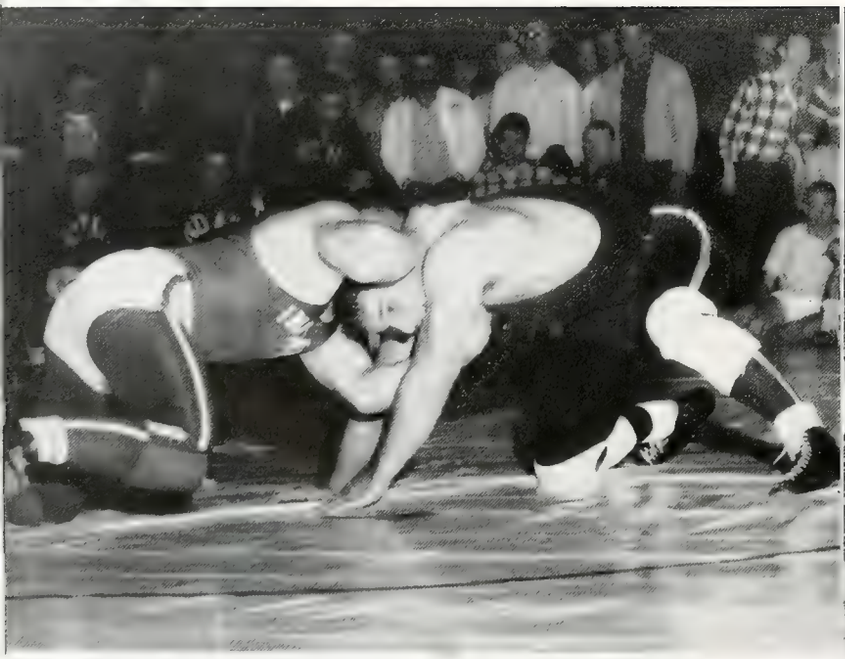

Ambition beneath perspiration and linament... Strength and speed... a universal language

This year could very easily have been the "year of years" for Coach Charley McDaniel's wrestling team. The squad, which was a holdover from 1957, had been heavily beset by injuries that season. Although the talent had been evident, it had never been in abundance.

With the exception of Joe Shook, sidelined with torn shoulder ligaments, the team has remained intact so far, with each man at times showing signs of being a Big Ten winner.

Bill Gallo, Don Morrison, Paul Blane, and Norm Komorowski all turned in high scores. However, the man to watch was Nick Petronka, who . . . barring injury . . . seemed sure to be in contention for national honors in the 147 lb. class.

A powerful calling card

A word from the wise

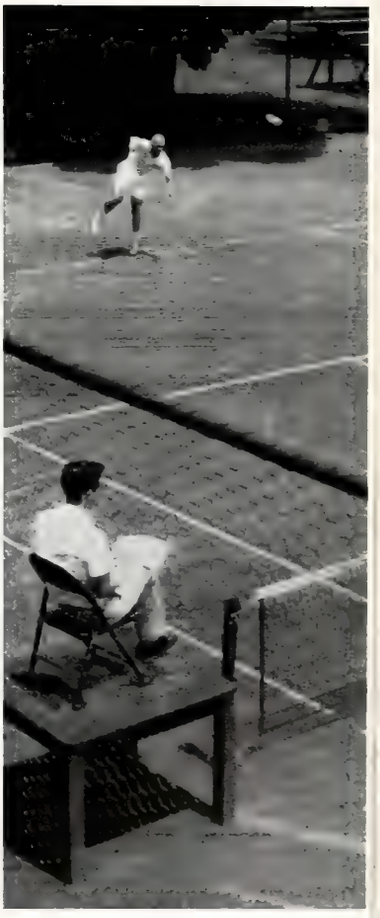

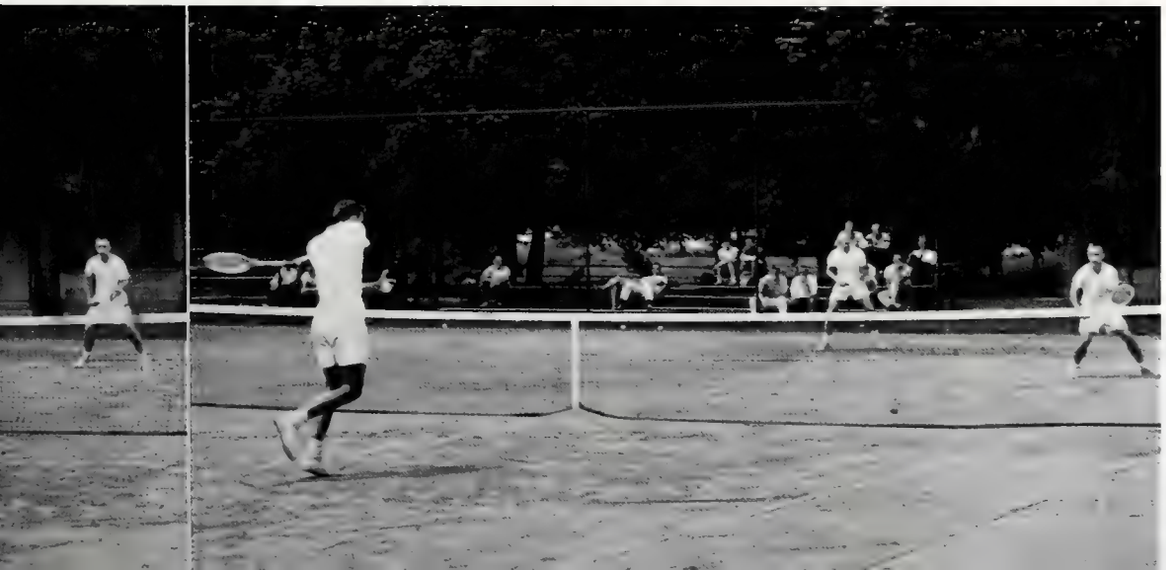

The tennis team, coached by Bill Landin, former Northwestern mentor, was forced to fluctuate in its performance this year while being in the process of rebuilding after last year's loss of experienced players. This year's squad had talent, but in different stages of development.

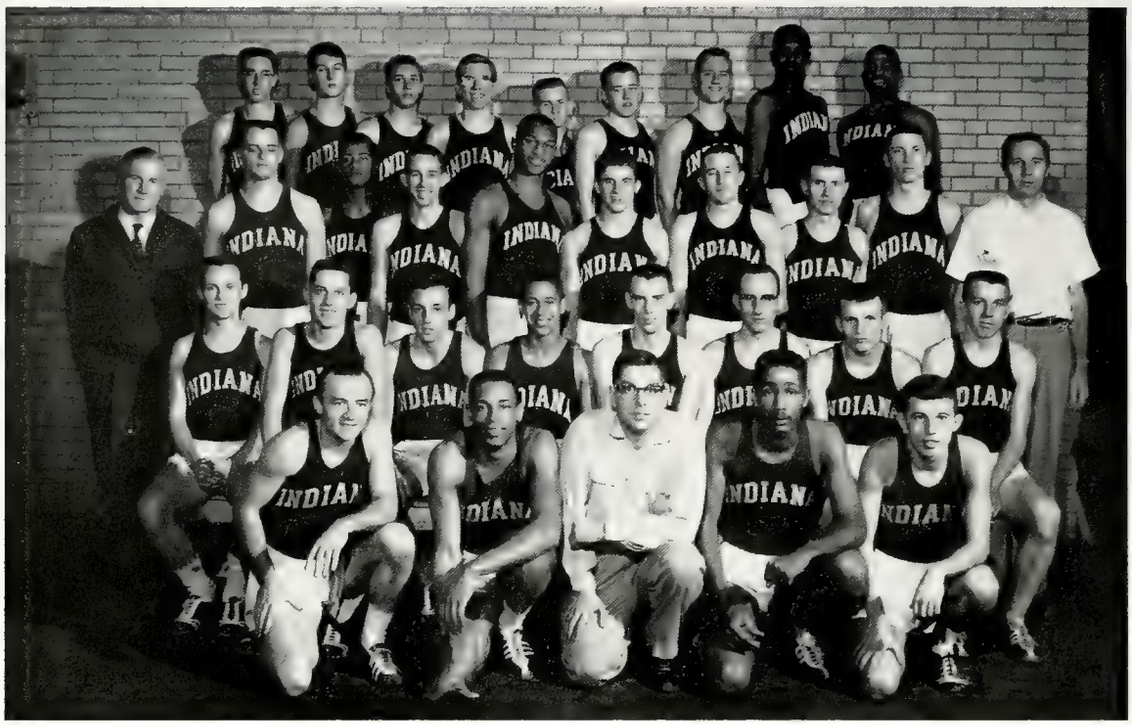

At the top of the ladder, playing number one for the second year, was Jerry Parchute, who looked as if he might be a good bet for Conference honors if he could find someone of comparable ability with whom to practice.

Playing in the number two spot was Bob Gray, last year's Big Ten number six champion. Bill Petric and Dean Dixon alternated between the third and fourth spots.

Jim Fitzpatrick played number five, Harry Garnette was sixth, and Ilan Rothmuller played in the number seven slot. Al Harker was eighth man, while Steve Haynes and Denny Lors looked as if they would achieve varsity status by next year.

Hearts versus seconds... man's eternal race

High stepping at the right time.

The 1958 I.U. track team, which was Big Ten outdoor and indoor victor last year, looked as if it might notch the Conference title again this year.

Leading the way for Coach Gordon Fischer's squad was Olympic great Greg Bell. Bell again proved invaluable, not only in defending his title as Conference broad jump champion and as a sprinter, but also as a member of the half-mile relay team.

Willie May, Big Ten hurdles champion, and Tom Campbell continued to turn in the two best performances in that event. Naverne Wille handled the distance chores, while sophomore help came from Al Phillips in the sprints, Ray Spivey in the hurdles, and Dick Pond in the mile event.

Other men who carved a place for themselves in I.U.'s track future were Joe Carroll, pole vaulter, Reggie Laconi, quarter miler, and Mike Smith, half miler.

And to the winner . . .

And now it's my turn.

The golf team was sophomore-strong this Spring as seven of the nine starting positions were filled by the best of last year's freshman contingent. After the Fall practice rounds had been completed, Coach Robert Fitch felt optimistic about the squad's chances of making the first division in Big Ten conference play.

Ron Royer was the number one man on the team. Royer, who has won many of the junior championships in the state, also set a new course record on the IU links with a 65.

Darl Kriete and Bart Spillman, juniors, also turned in top scores, while sophomores Jon Somers, Jim Brucker, Dick Barth, Tom Cable, Ron Wannamueller, and Sherrell Johnson rounded out the rest of the squad.

The IU baseball team took to the diamond this Spring with many questions to be answered. Having finished in the Big Ten cellar last year, it remained for Coach Ernie Andres to fashion a starting unit out of a handful of regulars and a host of untested juniors and sophomores.

Bill Smith, a control artist with a wide assortment of pitches, handled the tough assignments, while Larry Atkinson, Paul Michaels, John Lloyd, Gary Kozak, and Phil Elder shared the other mound duties.

Student Government

Ed Whalen, President

Executive

To give the students a chance to express their views in a democratic manner and to help formulate policy, student government was set up in 1948. Modeled after the U. S. government, student government is divided into three branches . . . executive, legislative, and judicial.

Working with Ed Whalen, this year's student body president, is the Senate Advisory Board, composed of presidents of campus organizations.

New this year is the Committee on Philanthropic Endeavor. COPE'S general aims are co-ordinating local fund drives, distributing Fall Carnival funds, and approving and supervising all special and emergency projects.

Bernie Minkow, Vice President

Legislative

Directing the legislative branch of student government this year is Bernie Minkow, vice president of the student body. Previously the only form of student government, the Student Senate now shares its powers with the executive and judicial branches. Activities which highlighted the year were the sponsoring of a leadership training program, the elaborating of the student health program, and the exchanging of ideas through the recently-joined National Student Association.

Doyle Winter, Chief Justice

Judicial

Chief Justice Doyle Winter and eight associate justices, all seniors, comprise the Student Body Supreme Court. Aided by a court reporter and faculty advisers, the court embodies the judicial branch of student government, coequal with the executive and legislative branches.

This highest student court may hear cases brought by any student, organization, or department. The court also reviews cases on appeal from lower campus judicial bodies such as Judicial Board, MRHA Court, or the Board of Standards. The court interprets the student government constitution and the laws of the Student Senate, and, with faculty members, sits as the Student Conduct Committee.

The 1957-58 court established commissions on honor, history, forms and ceremonies to make independent studies and recommendations.

Senior Class

Bill Fry, President

As freshmen they came to the university uncertain and a little in awe of this large school. The first year they studied hard and perhaps better than at any other time. As sophomores they became interested in campus affairs and were part of the many events which take place on campus. As juniors they spent their time in house or dorm activities. But the fourth year, the Senior year, is the time when they look ahead, for their interest lies with the future. Within them all is the desire to graduate.

As Seniors they are a little saddened, for everything they do is for the last time . . . the walks across campus . . . the dances in the Men's Quad . . . the basketball games . . . the friendly boresses. At the same time this year is new, different, and exciting. In early Fall comes the first display of their importance as senior pictures are scheduled and taken. Within a few weeks the men are proudly wearing the symbol of their class rank, senior cords. The Siwash and Senior Week are special events all their own, but throughout the year, they take job interviews or student teaching.

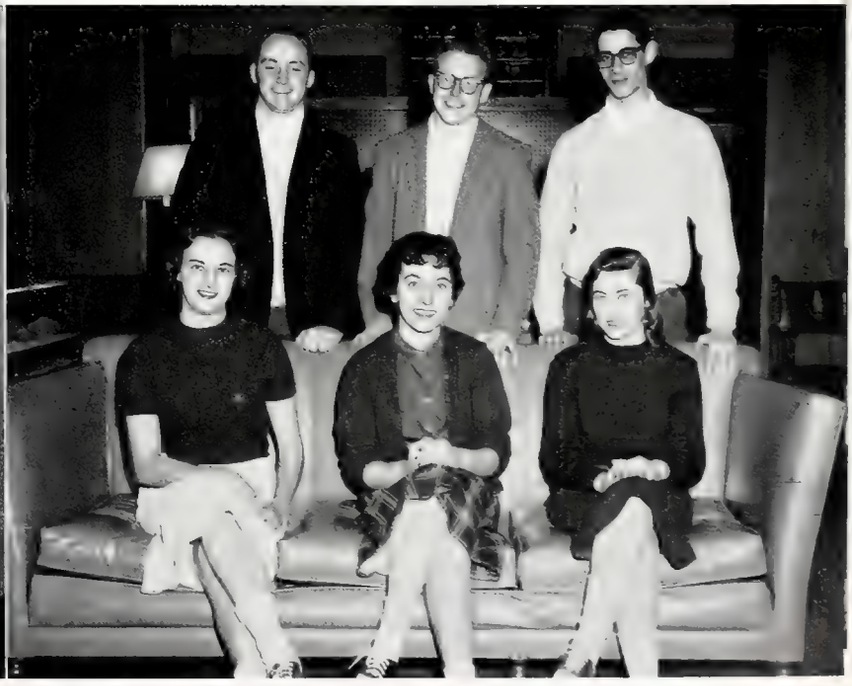

The senior year of college is an end . . . an end to life as a student. It is the last time for studies every night and for the familiar, exciting social whirl. Now they can look back at all they have done and all they have been . . . yet they can also look forward. In a few months they will leave this life, but they will gain a new world.

One of the biggest, most eagerly anticipated events of the social year, the Prom, is sponsored by the Junior Class. A "big name" band is hired and hours are extended to 4 a.m. After the dance, a traditional breakfast is served in the wee hours of the morning. The flurry of activity on this week-end is typical of . . . the junior year.

The sophomore is a special person on a campus. He is young enough to have most of his college career ahead of him, yet old enough to awe the easily impressed freshmen. With the indignities of green beanies, study table, and having to ask directions passed on to someone else, he can take his lordly place among "those who know."

Sophomores this year kept up with modern times and foreign affairs by naming their annual Sophomore Cotillion "Sputnik."

Freshman Class

All the old customs were new to the entering freshmen, who eagerly but confusedly became familiar with Freshman Camp, Orientation Week, Freshman Frolic, the green beanie, pledge ribbons, and three billion blind dates. Within a short while, however, they had elected officers and had become old hands at the collegiate arts of avoiding study, pulling boresses, and playing bridge. The Freshman Tyronian, based on Dante's Inferno, was the Class' big event of the year.

Union Board

The Indiana Union is the only organization on campus in which every student is automatically a member. The Union was founded in 1909 by John Whittenberger, who was then a student at IU. The organization's purpose is to promote the interests of IU and its students through many diversified activities and facilities.

A number of the Union's activities have become traditional. These major events include the Barbecue, Fall Carnival, New Faces, Cheerleaders' Conference, Fine Arts Festival, Campus Quiz Bowl, Opening of Formal Season, Madrigal Dinner, Christmas Eve on Campus, and the Easter Parade.

The Board of Aeons is composed of 12 undergraduate men appointed every year by President Wells from the top student leaders. The organization was created to provide a liaison between the administration and the student body. The Board interprets the needs of students and reports them to the administration. The University then can create policies that will best serve the whole campus.

Any problem that may affect the student, such as activities, taxation, cultural events, sports, and studies, is considered by the Board in order to provide a solution that will contribute to a better University.

Founded only last year, the Student Athletic Committee works to promote greater interest in athletics, especially during football season. Greeting the freshman with a rally during orientation week, sponsoring the homecoming parade and rally, and the burning of Jawn Purdue are examples of the activities for which the committee is responsible. Committee members are presently anticipating the completion of the new athletic building, which will allow them to enlarge the scope of their activities.

Indiana University's Gamma Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa has been active since 1911. Originally the organization was a secret fraternity. Under the influence of John Quincy Adams, however, its policies changed. Today it is an honorary society for the upper 10 per cent of the graduating seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences.

When a freshman woman makes a grade of 2.5 the first semester or a 2.5 cumulative for both semesters, she has the honor of becoming a member of Alpha Lambda Delta. The primary objective of this organization is to promote scholarship and intelligent living among the women of Indiana University.

Alpha Lambda Delta highlights its yearly activities with an annual banquet honoring pledges and outstanding senior women. An award is presented to the senior girl who maintained the highest grade average.

Freshmen men fortunate enough to make a 2.5 average are initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, national scholastic fraternity. To promote a higher standard of learning and to encourage high scholastic attainment among freshmen men, the fraternity was established at the University of Illinois in 1923. The IU chapter was founded in 1930.

Each year, Phi Eta Sigma distributes freshmen orientation booklets concerning methods of studying. The honorary also combines with Alpha Lambda Delta to act as hosts for visiting high school pupils on scholarship day.

Mortar Board is made up of senior women outstanding in scholarship, leadership, and service. Each member must have a minimum grade average of 1.8.

The organization sponsors the unique Dames Ball, at which the "dames" experience the responsibilities and assume the courtesy and initiative that are the traditional requirements of male escorts.

Each year, at the Sophomore Recognition Tea, Mortar Board honors outstanding sophomore coeds.

New Mortar Board members are "tapped" in their junior year at an annual spring mass meeting.

ROW 1: Barbara Cash, treasurer; Sandy Schroeder, Sarah Tritch, Sue Charlesworth, Helen Seidensticker, Linda Walker. Pleiades

Pleiades, derived from the Greek word for "sail," is the name of a group of stars in the constellation Taurus. With a parallel theme of excellence above the normal world, Pleiades honors organized junior and senior women who are outstanding in scholarship, activities, and service to their sororities and to the university.

One of the goals of freshmen women is to become a member of Enomene. The word enomene was derived from the Greek word meaning "unity." Promoting unity between the freshmen and the sophomore women and encouraging leadership are the primary purposes of Enomene.

The IU Chapter, which was organized in 1951, pledges five per cent of the freshmen women each year. The pledges must have a 1.8 average and participate in at least two campus activities.

Members may be recognized by the white pods with the Enomene insignia which are traditionally worn by initiates during Greek Week and at the AWS Mass Meeting.

dental fraternity

When it was founded at the University of Michigan in 1889, the Xi Psi Phi dental fraternity took its name from the beginning letters of three Greek words meaning "Hospitality Is the Life of Friendship." After establishing the chapter in Indianapolis in 1893, the men of this honorary have strived to make friendship its most important theme.

Carrying out this theme, Xi Psi Phi sponsors frequent parties and dances to provide a more complete social life for the honorary's members and alumni. The fraternity also invites outstanding men from the field of dentistry to speak at meetings, thus providing a more substantial basis upon which members can build their professional lives.

ΣΘT

Having the distinction of being founded at Indiana University in 1922 and being the only national honorary society for nursing in the United States, Sigma Theta Tau is dedicated to the goal of promoting high professional standards. This society fosters the development of leadership qualities by stimulating intellectual advancement and by encouraging desirable personal and social characteristics. The various groups of individuals who may be considered for membership include undergraduate students working toward a baccalaureate degree, faculty members, and individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the profession of nursing.

The scalpel of a doctor and the drill of a dentist might easily be symbols for Alpha Epsilon Delta, the honorary for premed and predent students who maintain a 2.0 cumulative.

AED does its best to encourage excellence in scholarship and to stimulate an appreciation of education in dentistry and medicine. As a professional honorary, it bands together students who have similar interests and goals.

This year the organization presented an open-panel discussion of socialized medicine and sponsored a premed-predent conference in Indianapolis.

A white "I" on a red sweater means I-Men's Club to its 150 members. The club works to provide unity among athletes and to promote Cream and Crimson Day. This May event gives the former and present I-Men a chance to compete against each other. The Cream and Crimson Day Queen is chosen by votes of spectators attending the games of this "all sports day." Attendance at a particular game counts one vote for the particular candidate representing that sport.

The organization with a "heart for humanity" is the YWCA. Besides sponsoring the IU Sing, Christmas Eve on Campus, all-campus worships, and the "hanging of the green," the YWCA works with children at Knight House, on Pigeon Hill, and those who are handicapped by curable paralysis. Each year the "Y" also sponsors the student leader program for incoming freshmen.

During the activities of LUNA, members and foreign students collaborate to make foreign dolls and produce the international doll show.

Part of the international organization, IU's branch of the Young Men's Christian Association strives to perpetuate more wholesome community and welfare for individual students. The year 1891 marks the division of the Joint Christian Association into the YWCA and the YMCA. They still, however, work together in sponsoring various projects. At IU, both organizations sponsor Freshman Camp, where some two hundred freshman have a chance to become acquainted with outstanding upperclassmen and with each other. Sponsoring the IU Sing, designed to promote good relations between housing units, and the Turtle Derby, which raises money for underprivileged children, are typical of their numerous activities.

Girls going through rush this year were lucky, as far as upperclassmen were concerned. Panhel, the governing body for all sororities, provided buses for the appreciative rushees. In addition, counselors helped individuals to decide on the "right" sorority. These counselors, sorority members themselves, also kept rush on schedule by enforcing the new rule limiting the time each rushee could stay at a house.

Other Panhellenic activities included selecting a steering committee for Greek Week, issuing a Greek paper, awarding scholarships, and serving as a sorority judicial board.

The year 1909 marks the introduction of Interfraternity Council to the IU campus. From its beginning IFC has strived to promote a friendly interfraternity relationship and to create the best possible attitude between the community and campus. Its powers gradually increased throughout the years until today it has full power to enact and enforce the rules by which the IU fraternities are governed.

Every spring, Greek Week is sponsored by IFC and Panhellenic Council.

The burning question during Greek Week, as far as pledges are concerned, is who will win the Freshman-Sophomore tug of war across the Jordan. A pledge victory means a bonfire and the end of pods for another year; a defeat, that the pledges must repress a tear, square their shoulders, and bear the beanie for another six weeks. These ceremonies are two of the events sponsored by Junior Interfraternity Council, the organization made up of a representative from each fraternity pledge class.

The MRC Board of Governors, composed of governors from North Hall, South Hall, West Hall, and both Cottage Groves, works to unify the activities of MRC and to define the policies of each individual unit. Moving with the progressive trend at IU, the Board established this year a center newspaper. True to tradition, they also sponsored dances and various other social activities.

To promote unity in dorm activities and create spirit in campus activities, the Men's Quad Board of Governors sponsors such activities as a Homecoming display, open houses, and a Fall Carnival booth.

Annually, a struggle for supremacy between the various units of the Quad is determined by a lively tug of war across the Jordon. On Saturday night of the Little 500 weekend, the governors sponsor a dance, traditionally called the Sprocket Hop.

Twenty-three years ago Folio began as a student literary magazine. Through the years, it has grown into a nation wide magazine with writers contributing from throughout the world. The contents of Folio, however, are not limited to professional writers off campus, but include student and non-professional contributions of literary quality.

During its growth, four Folio stories received national honorable mention and were reproduced in a volume of Best Short Stories.

Daily Student

Julia Wagner, campus editor
Gus Lumpe, city editor

Bob Wall, photography editor

To several thousand IU students, the Daily Student is as much a part of the morning as is black coffee, orange juice, and toast. To over 60 staff members, it means work, time, headaches, and a lot of pride. Working on a $60,000 budget, the Daily Student is still today the only paper read by many of the students on campus. There is a tradition of ninety years of journalism with the Student, and as the people who are a part of it change, the Student develops and grows.

Arbutus

Not only a record of isolated events, but a story depicting the growth of progress and tradition at Indiana University, the Arbutus has grown from a small publication in 1894 to a $50,000 business in 1958.

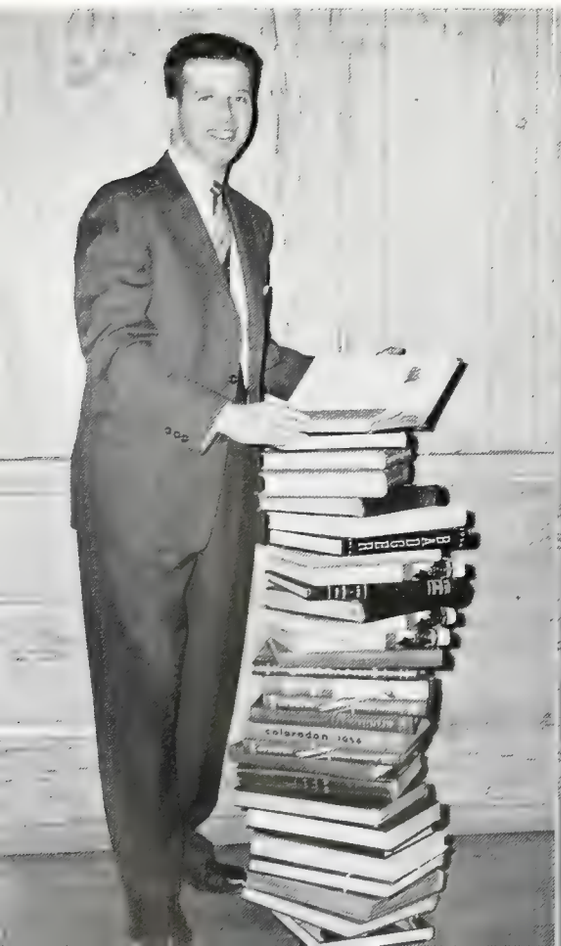

Overseeing the entire production is the Big Four, composed of the editor in chief, the managing editor, the business manager, and the personnel director. Directly under them, the Major Staff contains the heads of the various sections . . . contracts, treasury, office, advertising, publicity and promotion, circulation, personnel, and photography. There are also staff editors for art, schools and administration, narrative, residences, seniors, picture scheduling, organizations, sports, and copy.

Beneath the Major Staff work some 125 students comprising a General Staff. The work on the book's story of the year extends from a Spring training program to the next year's month of March. Over a thousand pictures are included within its pages. All in all, the Arbutus is a large organization, with a large responsibility, that offers a great deal of experience and training.

"First in the Quad" might well describe the Dodds House Gargoyles. For the fourth straight year Dodds House was named the outstanding Men's Quad unit. It also was the top dorm in intramural sports for three straight years. Of the eight Little 500 trophies in the Quad, the Gargoyles possess six.

The Gargoyles have initiated many traditions that have been followed later by other units. Choosing a unit sweetheart and having pins bearing the unit crest were their ideas.

At Christmas the Gargoyles decorate the outside of Dodds House with a huge wreath.

Laurel Hall became the largest domitory in MRHA when the north and south sections of Laurel consolidated this year. The purpose of the consolidation was to increase interest in dorm activities. Even though Laurel has been a men's dorm for only three years, it received the over-all trophy for being the outstanding men's dorm last Fall.

The nickname of "Caesars" for the dorm was chosen in a contest this year.

Last Fall Laurel Hall was the instigator of the plot to seize "Bernardine," causing much anguish to Linden Hall, owners of Bernardine, a lovely female cardboard figure.

Because of its collegiate Gothic architecture, Memorial Hall is often nicknamed "The Castle." It is the oldest dormitory for women and was completed in 1926. Before Memorial was built, the University rented Alpha Hall to house the women students.

The Memorial Plaque under the archway is dedicated to Indiana University women who have served in wars. The name "Memorial" is derived from this plaque.

One of the favorite relaxation spots is the downstairs recreation room called "The Stable". Lanterns with electric light bulbs provide a rustic atmosphere. Pegs along the wall are similar to those on which riding saddles are hung.

North Hall B, home of the Barons is better known as "Baron Manor." The nickname, Barons, was adopted by the hall in connection with the naming of the units in MRC. Several units bear titles of English nobility. In Medieval England the Barons, with their domains, were vassals of higher ranking lords or of the king.

Three years ago the Barons adopted their pin which is a shield with a tournament steed in the upper corner and the letter "B" in the lower corner.

The Barons hold an annual Christmas party for their dates. Entertainment includes decorating the Christmas tree.

The North Hall Cavaliers derive their name from a group of men in historical England, who united to support King Charles I in his struggles with Parliament.

The North Hall Cavaliers believe that they are closely united to make the dorm a better place in which to live.

The Cavaliers have an annual Spring Steak Fry held at McCormick's Creek, and they hope to make their Christmas Dance an annual affair.

The Cavaliers have had an organizational pin for three years. The pin is in the form of a blue shield, centered with the bust of a Cavalier.

Smithwood Wing IV is the southeast "arm" of the women's X-shaped dormitory. Wing IV, along with Wing III is at present the youngest dorm on campus. Both wings were opened in September, 1955.

The Wing IV students publish a bimonthly newspaper, "The Wing IVum," which reports their dorm activities as well as campus events.

Each spring Wing IV has a recognition banquet. This dinner honors women who have made achievements in scholarship, or campus and dorm activities.

Towers Center

Indiana University continues to grow. With this growth comes a process of continual advancement, reorganization, and development. New systems are considered; new ideas are tried. Towers Center now begins to take shape. With it rises a new concept in the university's housing . . . coeducational dormitories. Experimentally tested at IU in years past, coeducational dorms appear to have been successful, perhaps even as another step in a trend towards de-concentration of all-men and all-women dormitories. Don't forget Towers Center. Watch it. It may be a doorstep to the future.

Life... life is to share, to belong, to love...

"Home sweet home" . . . but don't forget the homework.

In the fall of 1946, the whole university was talking about the little city of trailers on Woodlawn Avenue. These trailers and the old Hoosier Courts were the first university housing for married students.

Today married housing is no longer spectacular or new, but the combination of student and married life is still an interesting, often difficult one.

Over 1057 students are living in the various married units spread over the campus. Both husband and wife might attend school. In addition, the problems of work, finances, and a growing family must be faced. Without the facilities, aid, and environment of married housing units, few couples could overcome the obstacles involved in obtaining an education.

Breakfast with a welcome, young guest-of-honor

Studying is best in early evening . . .

Husband helps with wife's tasks

. . . and visa versa.

and Junior has the right idea.

Ask of life but a chance to prove yourself...

Then stand and dare the world

When Indiana University was founded in 1820, no housing was provided for the students. They either lived in town or commuted.

Now, only about one-fifth of the total enrollment on campus is living "out in town," while five hundred of our 13,000 students are commuting. The university and the fraternity system have provided housing for the remaining 10,000 students.

The girls who live in town have formed a club called the "Townettes." Like dorms, this group participates in campus social activities.

Homework is the same . . . necessary, tedious

Housekeeping . . . elbow grease, patience, time

The weekly package of "many splendored things"

After supper comes time to relax, read, or study.

A world traveler takes a trip . . . on paper.

Home, a good meal, a good pipe . . . a good life

From the deeply rooted human need to belong

grows the fraternity,

grooming gracious, thoughtful,

and truly educated individuals.

The pin sparkles,

symbolic of the togetherness bond

symbolic of the traditions, of the future shared by its wearers.

Acacia, a Greek word meaning "forever lasting," was the name selected for the fraternity founded by the Masons in 1904. The IU chapter of Acacia was installed in 1916. The Acacias have lived in their present house on Third Street since 1938.

The Acacia Ice Cream Social traditionally brings to a close the Little 500 festivities. On the evening following the race, thousands of people gather on the Acacia lawn to eat ice cream and to socialize.

Each Christmas Acacia, together with a sorority, sponsors a party for children from the Masonic Children's Home in Franklin, Indiana.

The Alpha Chi Omegas are a part of Indiana. The sorority was founded at DePauw University in 1885 by a group of seven girls in the Music School. Because music is so much a part of their history, they chose the lyre as their pin.

The local Alpha Chi chapter was installed at IU in 1922. The university bought their old house on North Jordan Avenue after the sorority planned to build a new one.

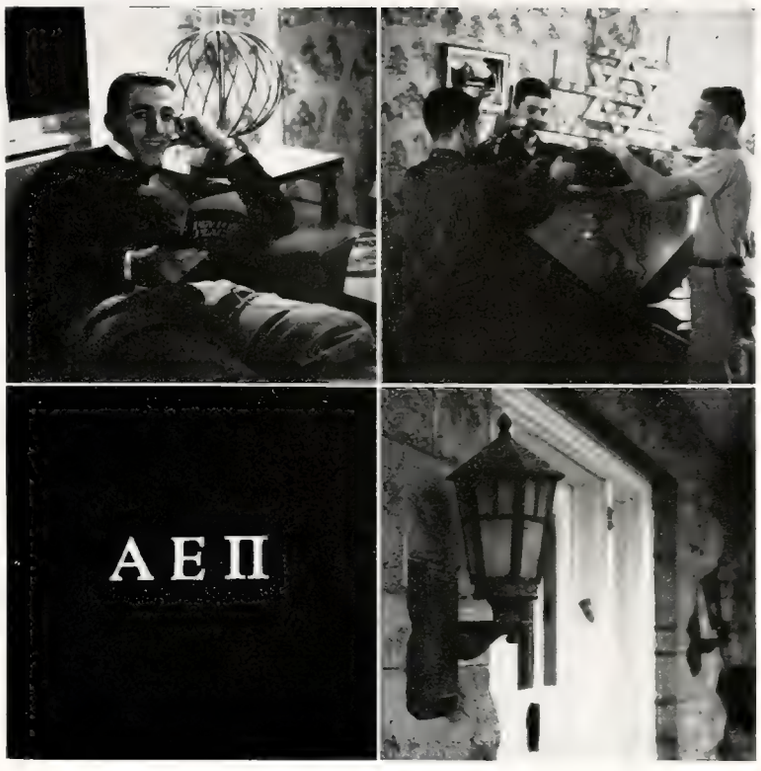

This fall the Alpha Chis moved into their new house on North Jordan Avenue. One of the highlights of the social season was an all-campus and faculty open house held just before Christmas.

Alpha Epsilon Pi, the newest fraternity on campus, was colonized by active members of the Purdue chapter in March of 1955. This fall they moved out of the Halls of Residence and into their home at 420 North Park Avenue.

AEPi, the largest Jewish fraternity in the United States, has 67 chapters and five colonies. They are represented on nine of the Big Ten campuses. The colony here has not yet received its chapter charter.

The AEPis received the IFC award for scholarship improvement in the spring of 1957. Their trophy case also holds the IU-Purdue AEPi traveling trophy for scholarship.

This year Alpha Gamma Delta celebrates its tenth year at Indiana University. The Alpha Gams lived for three years on North Fess Street. In 1950 they moved to their present location on North Jordan Avenue. There was one drawback, however, as North Jordan did not exist until 1952.

But the campus was moving north. Soon a road was built, and more houses were added. In 1954 the Alpha Gams added a new wing to their house.

This fall the girls welcomed their first sorority neighbors to New Fraternity Row with a chuck wagon breakfast, "North Jordan Round-Up."

The year 1922, marked the installation of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority on the IU campus. Originally the Alpha Gamma social club, it was founded in 1921 for the purpose of affiliating with the national sorority.

This year the IU chapter had an alumnae homecoming. Among the distinguished women present was Dorothea Cole, international model. On campus the Alpha Kappa Alphas are active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the American Counsel on Human Relations. The IU sorority contributes time and money to these groups.

IU's Beta Phi Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi was the second AOPi chapter in Indiana. The AOPis have lived in several houses since they arrived on campus in 1916. In 1954 they moved into their new home at 901 E. Tenth Street.

The AOPis have received an achievement trophy from the National Convention in recognition for their philanthropic projects and for helping other Indiana AOPi chapters organize.

Five years ago the AOPis originated the daily "Coffee Hour" in the Business School to help the students and professors become acquainted outside the classroom.

In 1947 the Alpha Phis were installed on the IU campus. Their house was formerly a private home. The Alpha Phis remodeled it by adding a wing and refacing the original frame structure.

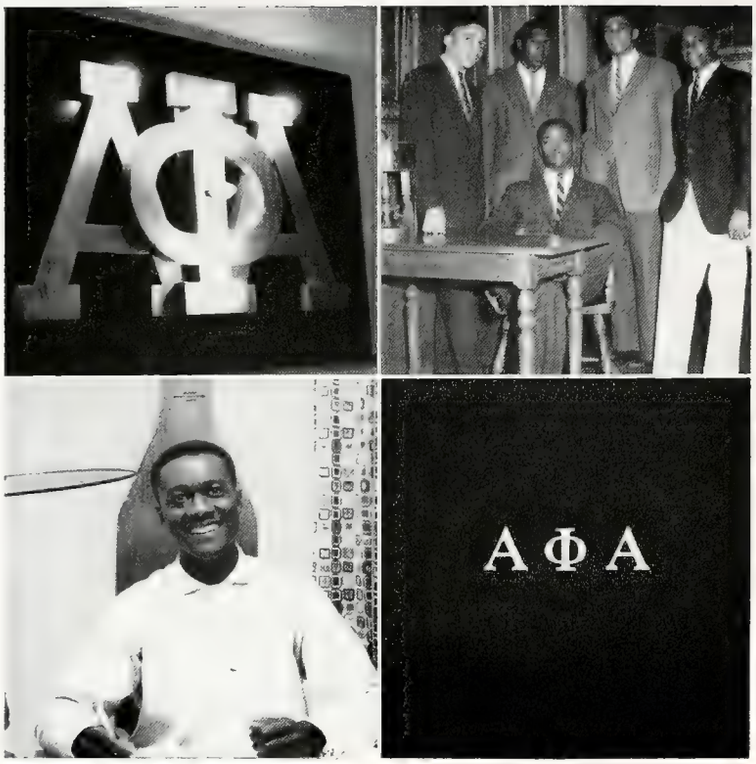

The Alpha Phis have originated a project which they hope will be handed down from year to year. This project is "The Toy Shelf," a room above the National Bank in downtown Bloomington. In this room are all kinds of toys which were bought or made by the members of Alpha Phi. These toys may be borrowed for sick children. When the child is well again, the toys are returned to the Toy Shelf.

This year the men of Alpha Phi Alpha are living in the dorm. The major interest of the chapter is the building of a fraternity house. The men are working together towards this common goal.

The Alpha Phi Alphas are hosts for a weekend each year to the Regional Fraternity Council of Alpha Phi Alpha. In this region Purdue and IU have collegiate chapters, and Gary and Indianapolis have graduate chapters.

Each year approximately 65 including guests attend the council. The weekend is a combination homecoming for IU graduates and a meeting for all chapters in this region.

In 1949, the IU Alpha Tau Omega pledge trainer, Bob Lollar, thought of a new idea in fraternity tradition. Inspired by the ill-feeling directed toward fraternities because of the pre-initiation "Hell Week", he originated "Help Week." The idea of fraternity pledges doing a community service before being initiated has since spread throughout the country.

"Help Week" projects range from chopping wood for a widow and five children to building a dog pound for the city of Bloomington. Each year the county welfare association is contacted for pledge class project suggestions.

Alpha Xi Delta was installed at IU by alumnae and national officers on April 13, 1946. The first initiates lived in private homes in the Bloomington area. In the fall of 1946, the Alpha Xis took members of Phi Omega Pi into their sisterhood. The Phi Omega Pis, a former national sorority which disbanded in 1946, lived at 1012 East Third Street, the present site of the Alpha Xi Delta House.

The Alpha Xi's Third Street home, acquired from the Phi Omega Pis is now being completely remodeled. By next fall the girls will be all settled in a new southern style limestone home.

Pi chapter of Beta Theta Pi, IU's oldest fraternity, came to campus August 27, 1845.

Their first house stood between what are now the Acacia and ATO houses. One night in 1927 the house was destroyed by fire. The Betas lived in two more houses and finally settled in their present home at 919 East Tenth Street.

The familiar Wellhouse was patterned by Theodore F. Rose in the shape of the Beta pin. In fact, college row has much Beta lore: Owen, Maxwell, Kirkwood, and Wylie Halls were named for members of Beta Theta Pi, and the Beta dragon sits on top of Maxwell Hall.

Each year the local chapter of Chi Omega awards the Social Science Prize to the outstanding woman in that field. She is selected by Social Science faculty members. This award is part of the national sorority's philanthropic project.

The local organization was founded in 1922 as the Theta Beta Chapter. Shortly afterwards, the members moved into their new house on Jordan Avenue, where the sorority still resides.

The Chi Omegas, as a part of their service activities, cosponsored a Christmas party this year for foreign students on campus. This was the third year that this event had been presented.

A "Bleed the Greeks" drive was sponsored by Delta Chi Fraternity this year. For the fourth year the fraternity aided the Red Cross in its blood drive by waging a special campaign for donations. A trophy was awarded to the fraternity or sorority having the highest percent contributing to the drive.

Delta Chi was installed on campus in 1925. Since 1953, it has sponsored an annual dinner for Thailand students. The affair has been recognized not only by campus officials, but also by the President of the United States.

Delta Delta Delta became a part of the IU sorority system in 1917.

The first Tri-Delts lived in the house which is now attached to the front of the infirmary. The Jordan Hall area south of the infirmary was then a romantic garden spot.

In 1925 the Tri-Delts moved to their present location on Third Street. Visitors to the Tri-Delt house pass through a triangle formed by three tall pine trees on the front lawn. This carries special meaning because the pine and the delta are both Tri-Delt legendary symbols.

The Delta Gammas came to Indiana in 1898 and have moved twice before moving to their present location on Jordan Avenue. Early this spring ground was broken for a new wing.

Each year preceding the Little 500 Race, the DGs and Kappa Alpha Thetas clash in the Little Little 500, which features egg balancing bike riders. The winning team is presented an egg beater trophy.

Every spring the DGs sponsor the White Cane Drive to raise money for the Indiana Association of Workers for the Blind. Helping the blind is the DG's national philanthropic project.

The Delt Street Dance has been a tradition of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity since 1859 when it was introduced at Bethany College in Virginia. Originally the event was called the Rainbow Dance because of the festive colors of the decorations. Because of its popularity, the dance became an annual affair presented by all chapters. Eventually the name was changed to Street Dance.

Delta Tau Delta has presented this dance annually for students at IU since 1951. A holdover from the original Rainbow Dance is the use of colored streamers for decorations. There is no admission charge.

Each semester the chapter plans a special service project in which all members participate. Last year the chapter took part in various campaigns and activities waged on campus.

During the summer Delta Sigma Theta entertained at a reception in Gary for a representative from Ghana who was on a government tour to inspect educational and recreational facilities in the United States.

Delta Upsilon was founded at Williams College in Massachusetts in 1834. Because the DU's were opposed to secret societies existing before the Civil War, they have always been a non-secret organization.

The DU's are the only fraternity at IU that has an open initiation. The families, fiancées, and pin women of all the fraternity members may attend the service.

Every chapter of Delta Upsilon has a firetruck. The Firemen's Fling, the DU's annual dance, is planned around the firetruck. All the dates for the dance are brought and taken home in the firetruck.

The Indiana chapter of Delta Zeta, one of the first five sororities on campus, was the fifth chapter of Delta Zeta to be formed.

When the IU chapter was installed in 1909, the girls lived in a house located on the site of the future Humanities Building. In 1923 the girls moved to their present location, a colonial style house across from the Union Building on Seventh Street. In 1954 the chapter added a wing to the east side of the house which doubled its size.

Every Christmas, the DZ's give a party for the patients at Madison State Hospital.

Gamma Phi Beta is IU's newest sorority. Its chapter was introduced to the campus in March, 1957. The sorority was officially recognized by its national organization the following November when its 35 members were initiated.

Gamma Phi has 67 chapters and is represented on nine of the Big Ten Campuses. The sorority was founded in 1874 at Syracuse University in New York state.

The word sorority was created especially for the Gamma Phis by a faculty member of Syracuse. Gamma Phi became the first organization to be officially called a sorority, rather than a fraternity.

Kappa Alpha Psi has the distinction of being the only national fraternity founded at Indiana University. From January 5, 1911, and its ten founding members, the fraternity has grown to a national organization of ten thousand men. Alumni and undergraduate chapters now number over 200.

Kappa Alpha Nu was the original name, but in 1914 it became Kappa Alpha Psi. Befitting its Indiana founding, the flower of the fraternity is the trailing arbutus, once common in southern Indiana.

Plans for the future of Kappa Alpha Psis IU chapter include building a new house.

The Thetas claim two firsts in the history of sororities. Kappa Alpha Theta was the first Greek-letter fraternity for women. It was established at Indiana Asbury College (now DePauw University) in 1870. That same year Beta chapter was installed at IU and became the first women's fraternity on this campus.

At IU the Thetas wear oversized Theta pins, an honor granted only to the Alpha and Beta chapter members.

As an annual project, the Thetas sponsor the "Theta Olympics," a contest between the pledge classes of all sororities.

Kappa Delta has been the fastest growing sorority on campus during the past three years. The chapter was installed at IU in 1955 with 18 charter members. Its membership now numbers more than 50 persons.

The KD's new house on Fraternity Row was dedicated this year. While waiting for completion of their house, the girls lived as a group in Trees Center and later in the Women's Quad.

The KD's raise funds each year for a crippled children's hospital in Virginia, which is the Kappa Delta national project. They also give weekly assistance to the recreation program at the Christian Center.

In 1926, Sigma Eta Chi, a local IU social club, affiliated with the national fraternity Kappa Delta Rho. Later that same year the new KDR's moved into the white house on Third Street which they now occupy. A third floor was added to the building in 1931.

On the lawn in front of the KDR house stand three tall trees. They were planted in 1946 as living memorials to three fraternity brothers who lost their lives overseas in World War II.

Last October, the Kappa Delta Rhos had an open house for the Errol Garner Trio after its appearance at the IU auditorium.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, the second oldest sorority at IU, was founded in 1870. Delta, the oldest continuously existing chapter of the 84 Kappa chapters in the nation, was installed here in 1872.

The greatest claim the IU chapter has to tradition of the national fraternity is the fraternity ritual, written by one of Delta's charter members.

Through the years, the Kappas have lived in six homes. In 1925 the present house on Third Street was built. Hawthorne Lane was put through between the Kappa and Phi Psi houses in 1925 because of an IU rule that no sorority could be next door to a fraternity.

The men of Kappa Sigma give a very special birthday party each year for George, their 170 lb. St. Bernard dog. George enjoys his custom-built doghouse and a private water fountain, besides the run of the campus and of the Kappa Sig house.

Also sponsored annually by the Kappa Sigs is the "Most Useless Man on Campus" contest. The idea developed in 1952 when an active kicked a rushee out of bed so he could sleep there himself. His brothers voted him unanimously the most useless man and challenged the campus to find a more unworthy person for the title.

The IU chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha was officially designated as a fraternity in 1917. Before then they were a literary club known as the Eureka Society.

Lambda Chi is the originator and sponsor of the colorful Easter egg hunt held on the university campus each spring for the children of Bloomington. The merchants of Bloomington assist the Lambda Chis by donating prizes for the event.

The chapter's idea of entertaining children in traditional Easter fashion has been adopted by a number of other Lambda Chi chapters throughout the nation.

The cherished traditions of Phi Delta Theta find expression in its IU chapter. The most obvious tradition is its architecture, a castle motif. Inside their castle, the Phi Delts have a blue room, originally intended for chapter meetings. In the IU chapter house, the blue room is maintained for entertaining guests.

"She Delta Theta Weekend," held annually by all Phi Delt chapters, begins on Friday with a formal pledging of the men's dates. Saturday morning the pledges have pledge details, including a cleaning of the Jordan Street castle. Saturday night, the coed initiation includes a gift of a traditional Phi Delt paddle.

The Phi Gams, who are forbidden by tradition to write their name in Greek letters, installed their local chapter in 1879.

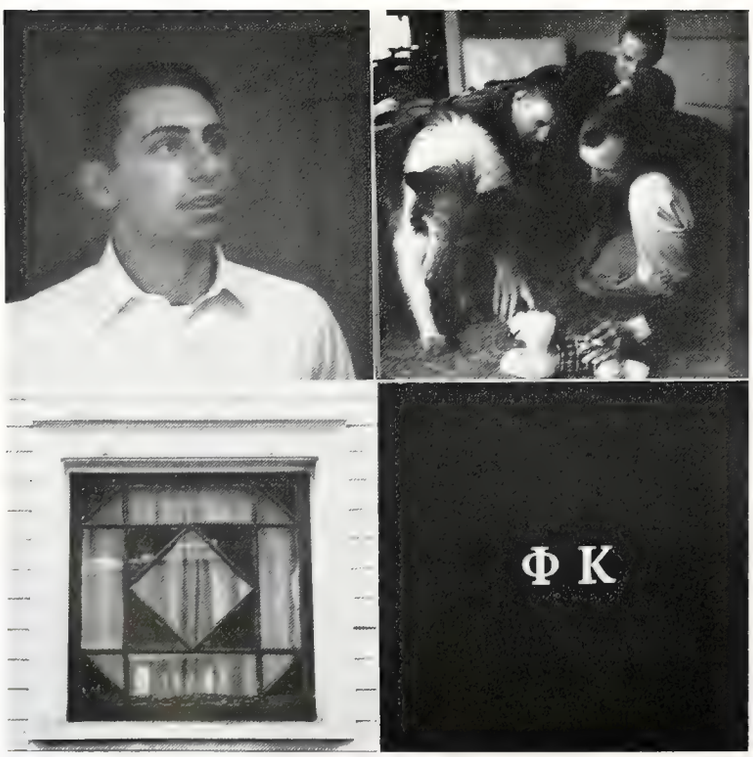

Although Phi Gamma Delta has the only fraternity house on University property, it has assured a continued tenancy by recently renewing its long-term lease. The original house has been expanded several times. The building was nicknamed "Beechwood" by the alumni and undergraduates because of beech trees that once surrounded the site. When an addition was added in 1951, the trees had to be cut down. A cross-section of one of them has been kept as a souvenir.

If you hear someone calling "Pledge!" and you see a big collie running in answer, don't be surprised. It's probably one of the Phi Kappas calling to the mascot they have had for eight years.

Phi Kappa Fraternity is one of two national Catholic fraternities. It was founded in 1889 in the East. Phi Kappa Fraternity has been on this campus since 1939. The IU chapter was formerly known as the Torch and Skull, a social club.

Each Christmas the Phi Kappas have a Christmas party for underprivileged children of Bloomington.

A typhoid epidemic provided the inspiration for the founding of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity in 1852. A group of students at Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, Pennsylvania, decided to band together in order to serve those afflicted by the disease.

The IU Phi Psi chapter is one of the oldest fraternities on this campus. They have been here since 1869 when Delta Psi Theta, a local fraternity, joined the national organization.

Phi Kappa Psi was the first fraternity to build a house on this campus. They completed and moved into their present home on Third Street in 1912.

One of the youngest fraternities on campus, Phi Kappa Tau, was installed in 1949. The IU chapter was formerly a group of ex-servicemen.

The three-year old jitterbug contest which the Phi Taus originated at IU has made the fraternity one of the top contributors to the Campus Chest during the Fall Carnival.

Jitterbug contests are now being sponsored by Phi Kappa Tau chapters in the East.

This year an auction was added to the jitterbug contest. Deans' jobs for a day were among the auctioned items. The Phi Taus are making the auction an annual event.

Because the original chapter of Phi Mu was founded in Georgia, the IU chapter often uses a southern theme for its social affairs. On one occasion, the group even had typical Southern flowers flown to Bloomington for dance decorations.

The local chapter house was built when the organization was founded on campus in 1920. It was remodeled and increased in size in 1956 to carry out the sorority's traditional Georgian architecture. A two-way fireplace is one of the features of the house.

This year, a special Christmas tree carried out the sorority colors of pink and white.

The local chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa, which was founded at IU in 1949, raises its fraternity flag and the American Flag daily on the flag poles on the front lawn.

The house itself is one of the oldest buildings of its type in the area. The home was constructed before the turn of the century.

As a part of the national organization's philanthropic project, the Phi Sigma Kappas took an active part in the Cerebral Palsy Drive on campus this year.

During the Spring the chapter also played host at the annual banquet presented in honor of all campus housemothers.

Since the Beta Chapter of Pi Beta Phi was founded on the IU campus in 1893, the local sorority has progressed in its building program and in its activities.

The house itself is symbolic of this progress. The original home was built in 1916. This part still stands as the east section of the front of the house. Later, the accommodations were increased by the west addition, including the colonial-style entrance. A southeast wing was completed last Spring.

The Pi Phis were the originators of the Miniature 500, which has since become a part of the Little 500 weekend activities.

To celebrate the tenth anniversary of their installation, members of Alpha Psi Chapter of Pi Kappa Phi held an anniversary banquet December 8. The chapter had 16 members when it received its charter in November, 1947; by 1957 it had 38 members.

The Pi Kappa house is located on East Eighth Street. Formerly the Sigma Phi Epsilon house, it was made the new residence of Pi Kappa Phi in January, 1955.

Among the Pi Kappas' philanthropic projects this school year was the sending of a CARE package to Yugoslavia.

Alpha Theta Chapter of Pi Lambda Phi received its charter in 1928. Since that time the chapter has occupied two houses, one on Third Street and one on Sixth Street.

Members of Pi Lambda Phi are presently living in the dorms while awaiting the construction of a new house. The chapter has purchased a lot on North Jordan Avenue. Plans for a new house have been drawn up and have been approved by the University and national fraternity administrations.

For Homecoming weekend, the Pi Lams had a hayride on Friday night, followed by their annual buffet dinner-dance at the University Hotel on Saturday.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was installed at IU in 1907. Its first home was at the present Weatherwax House site. The SAE crest may still be seen imprinted on the sidewalk in front of the house. In 1929 the SAE's moved to Jordan Crest Gables, their present home.

The SAE's sponsor a Sports Car Rally every Spring. All sports car enthusiasts are invited to compete in a race which is set up by the Sports Car Club of America with a predetermined time limit. This limit depends largely on the observation of laws and safety measures, along with distance timing.

The Founders' Cup award was given to Sigma Zeta Chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu last year for being the best of the national fraternity's 51 chapters throughout the United States. That same year the chapter's Scholarship Foundation, whose funds are donated by friends and alumni, awarded four scholarships to IU students, none of whom was a member of Sigma Alpha Mu.

Although the chapter dates back to 1922, its present house was not constructed until 1954. The Sammies' home was the first fraternity house to be built at IU for many years.

Tau Chapter of Sigma Kappa was installed at IU on January 4, 1918. The petitioning group was composed of members of the Independent Literary Society, which was organized on campus shortly after Sigma Kappa was founded at Colby College in 1874.

The Sigma Kappas' first home was at the corner of Sixth Street and Indiana Avenue. They moved once before buying their present home on Jordan Avenue in 1924.

In the Spring, the Sigma Kappas gave an open house for alumna Laurel Hurley when she starred in the Metropolitan Opera Company's production of "La Perichole."

Each year the Sigma Nus cosponsor a Christmas party for all foreign students at IU. The party is designed to bring the Christmas spirit to students from all countries who are not able to travel home for Christmas.

The IU chapter of Sigma Nu was founded in 1892. Their first meetings were held in a room above the Princess Theater. Dr. Frank Beck, one of the founding members, donated his home in Bloomington for the first Sigma Nu house. The Sigma Nus had several homes before moving to their present site on North Jordan in 1954.

Bill Cast, President

Thomas B. Glendening, President

In 1948, Delta Phi Sigma, a three-year-old local club, affiliated with the national social fraternity Sigma Phi Epsilon. After living on Eighth Street for a number of years, the Sig Eps moved to their new house on North Jordan Avenue. The house has a bright red door which is a tradition with the Sig Ep chapters all over the country.

This organization's national project is a camp for underprivileged children. Every year the local Sig Ep chapter helps to raise funds for the camp.

The Gamma Kappa Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon is one of the newer fraternities on campus. It was installed in 1950 when the first 34 members were initiated. In 1951 the TKE's moved from a small private home at 315 East Kirkwood to their present home on Seventh Street.

A unique feature of the TKE house is a patio fountain, located in the center of the house. The house was first built for a Spanish couple who wanted the fountain for small fish. Now the fountain is used decoratively to gain unusual effects at social events.

Alpha Iota Chapter of Theta Chi was founded at IU in 1920. The Bicycle Bounce, an event that has become an important part of the Little 500 weekend, was originated by the Theta Chis in 1951. The first year, Jordan Avenue was blocked off, and the dance was held in the street.

Later the Theta Chis built their tennis court, and since then the dance has been there. An informal carnival atmosphere prevails with pennants, flags, popcorn, and cotton candy. This dance, open to "all rhythmic feet and happy faces," is held after the Variety Show, the night before the bicycle race.

John Alden Scheiner, President

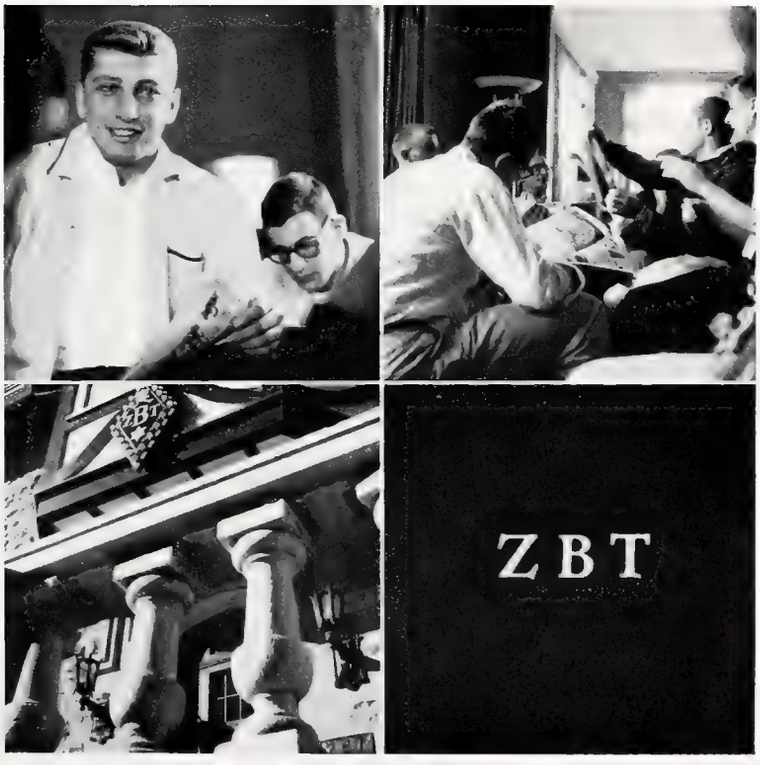

Every Christmas the Alpha Tau Chapter of Theta Xi Fraternity sponsors a party for handicapped children of Knight House. The chapter has carried on this Christmas party tradition since 1949, the year the organization was installed.

Theta Xi bought its present house, on North Jordan Avenue, in 1953. The chapter was the first male Greek organization to live on New Fraternity Row.

Theta Xi is the only national fraternity with a definite, written purpose. This document consists of seven different goals and ideals set up as standards for ultimate fraternal development.

ROW 1: Jerry Jacobson, treasurer; Lou Cohen, Steve Goldberg, Bernie Minkow, Martin Flynnberg, Roger Seltzer, president; Franklin Miroff, Jerry Moss, Barry Bergsman, Don Grande, Dean Glasel. ROW 2: Kenneth Bern, Burt Roger, Richard Mantel, Pete Sherman, Aaron Liberman, Pete Eisendrath, Barry Schutz. ROW 3: Seymour Prywellen, Gene Douglis, Robert Berebitsky, Myron Weinberger, Harry Sax, Norman Goldman, Larry Adler, Ed Friend, Moe Silverman. ROW 4: Warren Ackerman, Irv Siegle, Jerry DeVorkin, Bob Ziker, David Luvie, Mike Ross, Richard Lees, Buddy Yosha, Jerry Pollock. ROW 5: Ned Rosenthal, Max Schwartz, Joseph Rodenberg, Lee Chaskin, Barry Goldman, Stanley Stern, Richard Schwartz, Les Tankel, Ron Kirshbaum, Robert Garek.

From a group of eight men when it was installed in 1947, the Beta Gamma Chapter of Zeta Beta Tau has grown to an organization of 73 students.

Once a private home, the chapter house on North Park Avenue has had two additions, nearly quadrupling its original size.

At noon on the day of the Big Switch, a Spring house dance, the ZBT's evacuate their home, whereupon their dates move in and proceed to decorate for the evening's affair.

The chapter takes active part in philanthropic projects such as the local March of Dimes and Heart Fund drives.

Nadine Holmes, President

September, 1957, saw the Zeta Tau Alpha members of IU in a new chapter house on North Jordan Avenue. Three stories high, the Indiana-limestone building contains 31 sleeping rooms and a half-dormitory. In honor of their new home the Zetas held a High Society dance last fall.

The Alpha Xi chapter of ZTA was installed in 1922. The sorority's former house, located on South Jordan Avenue, was purchased by the Exchange Club of Bloomington and made into the new home of Knight House, a residence for children handicapped in speech and hearing.

The lines of the University draw us together.
We work . . . we study . . . we make friends.
In the end, we graduate.
As Seniors, our names become part of the permanent record kept by the school . . .
a story of learning and potential,
of the coming of age . . .
a story of life at Indiana University.

strength from structure

Ever watch a spider spinning its web?
Patiently, he weaves one gossamer strand upon another,
fashioning one of Nature's finest examples of strength from structure.

The composition of a natural tooth is another,
and more familiar, example of this same "natural engineering."
The strength and beauty of a natural tooth depends greatly upon its internal structure . . . and it is this dense homogeneous structure which is simulated in Trubyte Bioform Vacuum Fired Porcelain Teeth!

Though Nature cannot be duplicated exactly, the exclusive Trubyte Bioform combination of porcelain formulae, natural-blending and vacuum firing produces a porcelain substantially devoid of air-pockets—the strongest,
most lifelike ever offered to the dental profession.

CONVENTIONAL AIR FIRED PORCELAIN

TRUBYTE BIOFORM VACUUM FIRED PORCELAIN

Note in these two photomicrographs how the denser, more homogeneous structure of vacuum fired porcelain is substantially free from the voids and bubbles found in conventional porcelain.

You can enjoy the benefits of Trubyte Bioform Vacuum Fired Porcelain, in both anteriors and posteriors, simply by specifying a "B For Bioform"
Shade on your next denture case.

GOOD FOOD

Life on the farm revolves about the production of good food—enough for everyone. The Indiana Farm Bureau supports 4-H Clubs, the Future Farmers of America and the Indiana Rural Youth Clubs so that there may be a healthy interest in life on the farm, and in the business of farming.

Generation after generation, Farm Bureau strives to keep farming in good hands.

NEW BRILLIANT NATURAL BEAUTY . . . MADE "ALIVE" BY UNIVAC 3-DIMENSIONAL EFFECTS

UNIVAC®

LIFELUCENT PORCELAIN ANTERIORS

Here at long last is an entirely new and radiant lifelucent porcelain of exquisite beauty . . . new glowing "aliveness" . . . new "living" colors and color dispersions. These have been integrated by advanced techniques and electronic processes, creating a natural 3-dimensional effect so brilliantly alive in the mouth that it is virtually impossible to distinguish them from vital teeth.

Univac Porcelain is not merely an improvement–it is truly a completely new achievement of tooth porcelain research and development.

Call your Universal Dealer for a demonstration. Do see Univac Anteriors . . . see their light-absorbing properties so precisely matched-in-depth to human teeth. You'll insist upon Univac . . . and only Univac . . . for your patients. ★ ★ ★

NEW UNIVAC DENSE PORCELAIN GRINDS SMOOTHLY AND CAN BE POLISHED TO ITS ORIGINAL GLOSS AND FINISH.

Here's our brand new plant at Columbus, Indiana, where we make nationally-advertised COSCO Stools, Carts and Utility Tables; COSCO Juvenile Seating and Playtime Furniture; COSCO Chairs, Settees, Sofas and Occasional Tables; COSCO "Fashionfold" Card Tables and Chairs; and COSCO "Office fashioned" Chairs and Business Furniture.

Best wishes to I. U. Graduates!

● Congratulations to every member of the Indiana University graduating class!

We are fortunate in having several I. U. graduates on our management team . . . progressive young people who have helped to make this one of the nation's vital, growing corporations.

Because we are growing steadily, we will have new desks to man . . . and we know that a good share of well-trained I. U. graduates will take their places behind them. These young men and women will find the Hamilton Manufacturing Corporation a fine place to work . . . and Columbus, Indiana, a fine place in which to live and raise children.

Once again, from the old grads and all the rest of us here at Hamilton, best wishes to the class of '58!

Acknowledgements

For their many helpful suggestions, their aid in removing difficulties, their attention to details, and their patience with our many demands, we wish to extend our sincere thanks to: Gretchen Kemp, Jim Mahler, Poynter McEvoy, William Martinson, and William Campbell, our faculty advisory board; Dolores Schreck, our secretary; Dick Merriman, and Howard Belschwender of the C. E. Pauley Company, our printers; Dick Brier, Frank Persell, Jerry Ralston and Margaret Carey of the Indianapolis Engraving Company; Jack Bundy of the S. K. Smith Company, our cover suppliers; and Jerry Carlon of the Dexheimer-Carlon Studios, our senior portrait photographer

Gail, Dick, Louie, and Norm

Man's greatest gift is creation.

His greatest hope…acceptance:

The value of life can be weighed

On the scales of association and understanding.

One of being's greatest joys is working

Side-by-side with others—

To the accomplishment of a goal worthwhile.

In the world of Arbutus, the world of expression,

We give our thanks to those who worked…

To those who were…our people.
